RELATIONS WITH INTERIOR

A very serious complaint is made by D. D. Munro, representing the farmers of the interior of lack of co-operation by local merchants in regard to the marketing of the produce of that section of the country. There are faults on both sides. The farmers are careless and not always honest in regard to their marketing and the merchants are indifferent and inclined to follow the lines of least resistance and not always honest in their dealings with the farmers. That is what an outside observer would gather from hearing complaints of farmers and merchants during a period of years.

Just now the differences seem to have become very pronounced, so much so that farmers of the interior when asked to exhibit their produce here were inclined to hold back. Many of them refused.

As Mr. Munro says, Prince Rupert is the natural market for the Skeena and Bulkley valleys and it is to the advantage of both Thurber. that very close and friendly relations should be established and maintained. We should try to do business with each other as much as possible.

CENTRAL B.C. DRIVE

We suggest that as a means of improving the marketing of Central B.C. goods in Prince Rupert, a drive be made for the purpose of seeing that Central B.C. produce is marketed in the stores. Residents may all co-operate by asking for Central B.C. products such as meat, vegetables and fruit. In that way we may increase interest in the interior and the people of the interior can be asked to improve their marketing methods so that the people Kinley. in the city will know what they are likely to get when they place an order.

We have hopes that Williams year of art and photographic work, is too sensible for that. It is difficult nevertheless.

Supporting the stand taken at the recent international conference in Amsterdam, Dr. A. S. Lamb, director of physical education at McGill university president of the Amateur Athletic Union of Canada and mana er, of the Canadian Olympic team de res that women are unfit for athletic competition as keen as that seen in the Olympic games. "Physically and mentally women are unsuited for means of this nature," Dr. Lamb says. "They are high strung and no matter what their Three Marines, any size-1 Allan Physical condition may be, they are bound to compete with too much at stake. Dire results often follow. Whether these injuries are permanent or not, we do not know. Women have not been in athletics long enough for sufficient investigation to be made, But it seems evident tha tto some extent, they must be."

The race for the pennant in the American League is the test and most spectacular that Mrs. has been seen for many years. New York Yankees have again at least a temporary advantage over the Philadelphia Athletics but fans the country over. it seems, are as confident as they are hopeful that the Mackmen, after their long struggles of many years' duration, may yet come out of the heap on top. Certainly, nothing more popular could happen and the result is that the finish of the American race is eclipsing everything else in general interest. There AS AN INDUSTRY will be several hectic struggles before the end of the season and the World series in which, it is fairly probable HALIFAX, N.
