PARKS BOARD PUTS FORTH MANY SUGGESTIONS WITH VIEW BEAUTIFYING CITY

with flowers and shrubs.

ONE CLAUSE DELETED

The one clause of Parks Board recommendations which was struck out by the council was that which called for the removal of the handball court on Fulton Street near the City Hall on the grounds that it was unsightly. It was decided rather to have this repaired and painted and have creeping plants grown over it.

Ald. Rudderham, while admitting that the court was unsightly in its present condition, was not in favor of tearing it down. The city was none too well equipped with playgrounds for children for the benefit of whom this court had been originally built. In summer months it was popular with the children and there was hardly any time of the day that it was not in use by them. He was not in favor of taking the court away unless it could be moved to some other location. He felt that the court could be suitably repaired and stated that the members of the fire department had expressed willingness to undertake the work provided the city provided the materials such as paint.

Ald. Brown agreed with Ald. Rudderham's views. The children of the city, in his opinion, were far more important than all the tourist who came here and whose eyes might be displeased by the structure. It was not practicable to move the court to the rear of the Fire Hall as had been suggested. That ground was already in use as city yards. He was opposed to tearing the court down but was, rather, in favor of having it fixed up.

Ald. Dibb was not in favor of tearing the court down. If nothing else, it concealed an ugly rockpile. He was in sympathy with the offer of the members of the fire department to fix it up. Possibly vines and creepers could be trained over the structure.

Ald. Linzey felt that the structure in its present condition was an eyesore. He favored moving the court if possible so that the City Hall lawn might be extended and creepers trained up the hillside.

Ald. Greer was also in favor of moving the structure if possible. He had understood that the fire department was willing to have it torn down.

After some further discussion, it was decided to delete the clause from the recommendations and that the court be instead repaired and painted and further improved through the planting of vines, etc.

REMOVE EYESORES

Going on to the clause relative to Cow Bay, Ald. Rudderham felt that here indeed was one of the real eyesores of the city and one which almost all tourists had to pass.

The desirability of preserving standing timber was stressed by Acting Mayor Collart. A stop should be put to its unnecessary destruction.

In the matter of advertising signs, City Solicitor Jones stated that the city had no power except on its own property. It might be well to enlist the co-operation of the provincial government as far as the highway was concerned.

Several specific instances were referred to in the discussion on the clauses relative to private property strewn with rubbish and domestic animals and fowls.

There was the right of prosecution for depredation upon fenced gardens stated the city solicitor in the matter of the use of the streets for garden purposes.

In the matter of stump pulling, it was stated that the city had a stump puller and the steam roller might be used when it happened to be working nearby. Some gardeners might be willing to pay for the use of the steam-roller suggested Acting Mayor Collart.

If the city had the money, Ald. Rudderham was not opposed to the suggestion relative to the planting of shrubs on the street hillsides.

GARDEN PRIZES

In the matter of prizes for children's and amateur gardens, Acting Mayor Collart stressed the desirability of encouraging the children to have gardens of their own. This might aid in preventing them destroying gardens of other people. Cash prizes, he felt, were most suitable for children while plant prizes such as suggested would probably be more appreciated by the adult gardeners. He felt that the city would be justified in making the small grants that would be required in this connection.

In the matter of McClymont Park improvement, Ald. Greer felt that a survey should be made of the park and any future improvements be put on a systematic basis. It would be unwise to plant gardens where streets would eventually go. Improvement of McClymont Park, Ald. Greer felt should be placed in the hands of the Parks Board to which the appropriations would be made. The Board of Works had plenty of other work to look after.

Speaking of Grenville Court, Acting Mayor Collart stated that, if the ground were put in shape, Mr. Glennie had offered to plant it in flowers and bushes. It was a very generous offer which he felt the city should avail itself of. It was suggested that pretty nearly all the tourists headed for Fraser Street.

"I think the provincial government should do the work," facetiously remarked the solicitor.

CITY AT FAULT

Ald. Brown referred to the unsightly litter that had been left on Graham Avenue throught the piling of stumps alongside the street after it had been graded. Hhe felt that there should be no delay in burning these stumps up on Graham Avenue or any other point in the city where they had been left. This suggestion was added to the recommendations.

The recommendations were then adopted and referred to the Board of Works to carry out its share of their execution.
