

Man in the Moon

A rolling stone does not often become a tombstone.

How can you put your foot down if your heart is in your boots all the time?

Man a man has made a slip by just stepping on a Prince Rupert sidewalk.

Things you get free are seldom of any value. That's the case with advice.

If you spend your money away from home there'll soon be no Prince Rupert.

Things on the doors are pretty much out of date and soon the city will be in the discard with them.

Business comes where it is invited and stays where it is well treated. Inviting business is called advertising.

"And when are you thinking of getting married?" "Always, my dear."

A girl has twice been awarded damages for breach of promise. She can now live on jilt-edged securities.

"Yes, m' husband is laid up, a victim of football." "But I didn't know he ever played football."

"E don't. 'E sprained 'is larynx at the big match last Saturday."

A blank check is not much good and neither is a blank expression.

The man in the moon Went up in a balloon And was nearly out of sight Then he cut himself loose, The silly great goose, And came home late half tigt.

Blessed are the poor. They don't have to worry over static and frozen radiators, the price of gas and other foolishness.

The difficulty about dieting is that it takes such a lot of it to make any impression in the right place.

Angry Customer—These eggs aren't fresh.

Indignant Grocer—Not fresh? Why, the boy brought them from the country this morninz.

Customer—What country?

This Ensemble Costume Solves a Serious Problem

We all have had dinned in our ears that costume suits are absolutely indispensable this season. By costume suits, I mean ensembles—ensembles consisting of coat and frock definitely belonging one with the other. But many women feel that they cannot afford to invest in a coat that can be worn with but one frock. Illustrated above is a costume that solves this problem, for the coat is a full length one, and may be worn with any costume. It is of black Kashmir, warmly interlined and is collared in black lynx. The frock exactly matches the lining of the coat, and is a one-piece model with self pleating.

EMBARRASSING MOMENTS

Ten Years Ago in Prince Rupert

November 24, 1918

Negotiations are in progress for the establishment of steamship service between Prince Rupert and the Orient. It is announced by Capt. C. H. Nicholson, manager of Grand Trunk Pacific Steamships, who is in the city today. More than one concern is making investigations with that end in view, he states.

Many entries are being received for the parade next week which will be held as a local peace demonstration.

Capt. Newcombe of the fishery patrol steamer eulogizes the valor of Capt. Walters of the local trawler G. E. Foster in attempting to give aid to the patrol vessel Galiano which recently went down off the south end of the Queen Charlotte Islands.

One Saturday a small boy saw some men working at a schoolhouse and inquired of one of them what they were doing. "Installing an electric switch," he was told. "Oh!" said the youngster. "Well I don't care. We're moving next week, and I'm not going to this school any more."
