At 106 William Walker Declares he Will See Australia vs. England at

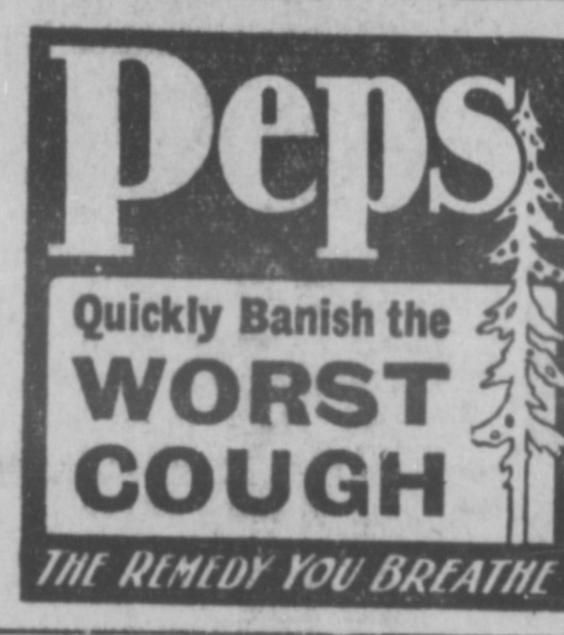

NOTTINGHAM, Eng., Feb. 10-William Walker, of Wilford Road, Nottingham, claimed to be the oldest man in England, got up on the morning of his 106th birthday amid shoals of congratulations. "I am in good health, thank God," he said, and judging by his daily diet his constitution is still as vigorous

He takes two cups of tea at 6 a.m., and has a pint of milk later. For dinner he has meat, vegetables and milk pudding, and two more cups of tea. Bread and butter and pastries follow at tea time, and some pork or sausage for supper. He also has a pint of beer and bread and cheese during the day.

He spends 3s. 6d. of his 10c. weekly old-age pension on tobacco. Mr. Walker's passion in life is cricket. "I am still not out," he declared, with a chuckle, "and I shall have to go up to Lord's to see the Australians before I have finished."
