FINED HEAVILY FOR SUPPLYING

Walter F. Corry Assessed $300, With Option of Six Months, in City Police Court

Walter Frank Corry was found guilty by Magistrate McClymont in city police court this morning on a charge of supplying liquor to Indians and was fined $300, with the option of six months imprisonment. Chief witnesses for the crown were David Douglas, Kitse-las Indian, and his wife, Eliza. They told of being invited last Saturday night to the shack of Corry on Park Avenue where they were given drinks of beer and rum. During the evening there was a melee which each side blamed the other for starting. Douglas said that the trouble arose when defendant made an improper suggestion regarding his wife, Corry, on the other hand, testified that Douglas had claimed $7 from him and, when he had refused to pay it, Douglas attempted to choke him. The outcome was that accused released himself from Douglas who, with his wife, was ordered out of the shack.

Evidence of David and Eliza Douglas was corroborative while Peter Wells testified to the fact that David Douglas was sober immediately before going to accused's premises.

Henry J. Damsley and John Comlough, who were in the shack at the time, gave evidence in support of Corry's story.

In giving his decision, Magistrate McClymont pointed out that the court had had many Indian cases to deal with and that, while their manner of giving evidence might be peculiar, the true facts were usually arrived at. He was satisfied that the Indians in this case had obtained liquor as they described and he did not believe the story of the accused. Supplying of liquor to Indians had become a very common practice here and one, which through its demoralizing effects upon the natives, could be met with no half way measures. He, therefore, found accused guilty and imposed the fine or jail sentence as stated. City Solicitor E. F. Jones prosecuted while John V. Clyne appeared on behalf of Corry.

David and Eliza Douglas were each fined $10 for drunkenness.

JEWISH CHILDREN SCHOOL ATTENDANCE

London Educationist Says They Do Good Work in School but Should Play More Than They do

LONDON, Jan. 11.—Jewish children make the best attenders of any children at the elementary schools of London, according to Sir Robert Blair, formerly education officer to the London County Council. "I found that they made a better all-round attendance of one per cent," says Sir Robert. "They had another quality. Their work was very good, but I would have liked to have seen more of their numbers on the playing fields."
