EASTER FESTIVAL

Tomorrow is Easter, the festival of the resurrection, originally chosen by the heathen Goddess of Spring, Eostre, as the time to celebrate the resurrection of plant life after the winter's sleep and later adapted by the Christian Church to be the greatest of their festivals, that of the resurrection from the dead.

If there are any who do not believe in the resurrection of the dead, we suggest that there is such a thing as the resurrection of dead hopes, a joyful rebirth of our aims and ambitions, a change from the death of aimlessness to the life of joy in work well accomplished for a definite purpose.

Easter should be a joyful time. All life is bursting from the sombreness of winter into the brightness of spring with close ahead the warmth and luxuriousness of summer.

GREAT STORY TELLER

To be a great story teller is a means of bringing smiles to a great many people. Telling stories may be used effectively by public speakers in putting their audience at ease and making them feel in a receptive mood for the message which is to follow. Stories may be used for illustrating important truths. They cheer the sick and drive away the blues.

Chauncy Depew, known as the greatest of story tellers, has just died at the ripe age of 93. He made a study of the art and the results fully justified the effort. He was a businessman and became rich but he never gave up what was the real meaning of his life, that of bringing sunshine into public gatherings and cheering everybody with stories.

The Great Sir Isaac Newton thought himself a theologian but to us he is the scientist who discovered the law of gravitation. Possibly Depew thought himself a railwayman, a lawyer, a capitalist or a politician, but to most men he will always remain the champion after dinner speaker and story teller. May his memory inspire many another to follow his example.

HEAR WARNER SPEAK

The editor of the Smithers newspaper who is also president of the Associated Boards of Trade of Interior British Columbia is to bring a message from the interior to the people of Prince Rupert on Tuesday next. He is to be the chief speaker at the Board of Trade dinner. Doubtless most business and professional men and many others in the city will wish to hear him. He should have a message of inspiration and faith for Smithers is one of the towns that has made good and the Interior News is a successful newspaper.

KILLING REDS IN CANTON

Canton is having a bad time just now. In Canton Reds are being executed as a measure of self defence to prevent an uprising. Life is lightly esteemed in that country and law and order are not much in favor with a great many. The penetration of Bolshevism is causing all sorts of trouble and it may be years before there is any settled government in the country.

Presently, however, China will awaken and these troubles are partly the result of the beginning of the letting in of light.

VANCOUVER POLICE TROUBLES

No one seems to know much about Vancouver's police troubles but there have been all sorts of vague murmurings there for some time in regard to graft and law breaking among members of the force. In the greatest commercial centre of the west it is desirable that conditions be such that the city may be an example to the rest of the province. If a Royal Commission is the only means of getting at the facts, it is to be hoped that a Royal Commission will be granted. At any rate it seems now as if something would have to be done to allay public feeling in the big city.

DIVES AND HAUNTS OF UNDERWORLD ON SCREEN

Drama of Life Among Criminals Being Seen Here This Week-end

Conventional backgrounds usually associated with crook melodramas were thrown into the discard in filming of "Underworld" Ben Hacht's powerful crime story which was shown here last night and is to be repeated tonight.

Striking settings and colorful locales that breathe the spirit of realism have been included by Josef Von Sternberg, director of the exposure of American crookdom.

The scenes showing the heart of a metropolitan city were taken in downtown Los Angeles during the rush hour when the hurrying throngs were too intent on getting home to realize they were being caught by a battery of cameras.

The underworld haunts, dingy cafes, hide-outs of criminals and dim warehouse district streets have a compelling interest, while offering opportunities for exceptional photography.

Against these backgrounds a drama of the underworld is portrayed by George Bancroft, Evelyn Brent, Clive Brook, Larry Semon and Fred Kohler. The production was made under Hector Turnbull's supervision.

Man in the Moon

TONGUE in the morning and cold shoulder in the evening makes pretty good fare, if you like it.

THERE are two sides to every question, there's mine and my wife's.

THEY may be all the world to you young man but it is not always good to have the whole world for your own.

A WOMAN thinks a man's heart is in the right place if it is at her feet.

"DO you know who that girl is?"
"My dear boy, with the present fashion of short skirts, by the time my eyes reach their faces they're out of sight."

"AND is your husband a good provider?"

"That he is, mum—he's been saying for ten years that he'd buy me a new dress provided he could spare the money from his drinkin'."

Ten Years Ago in Prince Rupert

APRIL 7, 1918.

Premier John Oliver and Hon. T. D. Pattullo, minister of lands, are urging that the federal authorities make use of the Prince Rupert dry dock in the program of shipbuilding for war emergencies.

Lieut. Shaw of Vancouver is at present in the city recruiting for the Royal Flying Corps. Men between 17½ and 25 years of age are desired.

For the first time since his return from overseas, Andy Hepburn was at the wheel of the fire truck yesterday afternoon when an alarm was turned in from the home of Mrs. P. I. Palmer, Fourth Avenue East. There was a fire on the roof, presumably caused by a defect in wiring.

In The Letter Box

EASTER MESSAGE: HOPE AND CHEER.

Editor, Daily News.
The following is the experience of the newly dead by one who has passed through them:

The change from this life to that after death is more remarkable than that of the caterpillar to the butterfly. What first astonished me, that there is no such thing as distance on the invisible planes. Just before my transition I wanted to see my mother who was on the other side of the continent and instantly after my passing I found myself beside her. I remember that I was very much surprised and perplexed because I could not make my presence known. However, she felt it, for she was much agitated and told her maid that something must have happened to her William. That is what she always called me, and said that she felt I was near her. Although I kissed and caressed her as I always did, she did not know it. Finally the door bell rang and a telegram was handed to her by the maid. "William has passed away. Wire if you can come to the funeral, with my wife's name, "Laura" at the bottom. Poor mother! She sat dazed as the tears rolled down her wrinkled cheeks. Then she went to her room, knelt at her bedside and prayed to be taken to her loved ones who had crossed the river Jordan. Then she told the maid to telegraph my wife that she would take the first train west, and she started to pack her trunk.

I accompanied her on the train and at the station met my wife. Kissing and embracing each other, mother and daughter took a car to my home. Laura led mother to my room, tenderly took the white cloth from my earthly form and kissed its brow, loving tears like glistening pearls on its pale cheeks. My body still had an attraction for me. I would return to it then go to Laura and the children and try to make them understand that I was happy and having a jolly good time soaring through the air seeing my friends and the wonders of the earth. There is no death.

Free! Hom! Behold the man! And do we hear no more the cry of pilate ring adorn the years? Have we forgot Thine agony of yore? The nail-pierced hands, Thy suffering and tears?

Is it not still as fit to Calvary's hill As on that morn two thousand years ago When Thou a man of sorrows wore the cross

And wore Thy crown of thorns, Thy garb of woe?

Grant Lord that we may never forget Gethsemane, Thy sorrow and Thy shame!

And may we hear today, just as of old, Above the storm, the tumult and the strife

Thy words of triumph over death: "Behold, I am the Resurrection and the life."

THE CENOTAPH

Editor, Daily News:

With reference to the proposed Cenotaph to be erected to the memory of the fallen heroes of the late war, by all means let there be some sort of memorial to them. May they rest in peace. But what about the fallen heroes of the late war who are still alive. Fallen on evil days? If that the persons say is correct, the dead heroes are all right now. I heard one clergyman say that those who were killed or died from wounds in the war went straight to heaven! There are many of us returned soldiers in Rupert dead "up against it" and through no fault of ours. My personal experience is only one of thousands. I have been badly wounded and besides suffer severely from rheumatism. I am unable to do hard physical work, though perfectly willing and when I try it and fall down on the job, I am abused, sneered and jeered at when I mention that my wounds trouble me. I am told rarely: "Come, none of those old soldiers' tricks."

LIVING HEROES

I would suggest, Mr. Editor, that besides the proposed Cenotaph to the "Fallen Heroes" (Peace be to their ashes) something also should be done for the fallen living heroes. Why not turn the waste ground in front of the Court House into ornamental gardens with a fountain or so—make the place a blaze of color in the summer and a tablet could be placed in a prominent place saying these gardens were constructed to the memory of the fallen dead by their comrades—the fallen living. The same could be done with the grounds approaching the C.N.R. Station or depot here. The sidewalks in the city could be improved or repaired (those on Third Avenue are a perfect disgrace). I saw people nearly breaking their necks yesterday by falling over loose boards) and tablets inserted here and there to the memory, etc.—the cost to be met, by popular and public subscriptions. As it is, the Cenotaph would be only an excuse for the local Militia to parade with their officers in their fancy uniforms and tailor-made swords and some arm chair general to come along and spout a lot of sentimental tosh, and eulogize "have a whiskey and soda old dear, old chappie at the club" when it's all over. I know.

My suggestions, if acted upon, would give a good deal of employment and would be a public benefit besides and by the public also.

Would you open your columns for suggestions as to the best form of a memorial? The mayor might offer a prize for the best suggestion. Yours faithfully,

ONE OF THE "FALLEN LIVING"
P.S.—The gardening suggestion, if acted upon, would give much needed light employment for even repairing the broken sidewalks to ex-soldiers who, physically are unable to perform heavier tasks. If the generous public can sub-
