Casual Sniping Goes on Between Opposing Political Armies at Ottawa but No Casualties as Yet

Few Big Guns in Action: Government can put up Strong Barrage With Artillery of Oratory

(By R. J. Deachman) rogs et [1] OTTAWA, March 10 .- Parliament has developed into a form of trench warfare. The lines of the armies are clearly defined. Casual sniping goes on from time to time. Puffs of smoke linger over the field as scattered sections of the opposing armies are drawn into the fight. At rare intervals a Jack Johnson (Big Gun) roars into action. Fresh troops are brought up. The battle takes on a more or less agitated phase. Communiques become more illuminating. The government report reads: "There was sharp fighting last night in the neighborhood of Dunning. The enemy brought up fresh Hockenite troops from Toronto. They * were eventually driven off with heavy United States: losses." The Opposition story is different. A wireless message just picked 1891 81.1 up, reads: "Our troops were engaged 1922 last night against a heavily entrenched 1923 89.3 position of the enemy near Dunning. 1924 85.3 Some progress was made.
