

Zam-Buk

ITS ROMANTIC STORY

World Search for Rare Medicinal Herbs

It is not commonly known that countries so far apart as China and Spain, Japan and England, and Tasmania and France have searched for the species of herbs used in the manufacture of that world-famous healing balm ZAM-BUK. These herbs are many of them rare and costly. They need to be gathered just at the right season when their juices and medicinal elements are at their very best.

Zam-buk is the true successor of the original healing balsams of Ancient Rome, with this important advantage—Zam-buk, in addition to its rare herbal composition, has twentieth-century medical knowledge and manufacturing skill, to bring it to a pitch of perfection, probably never equalled in the annals of healing. The different medicinal qualities in Zam-buk are beautifully balanced. The healing side with the antis-ptic, the germicidal, it is restorative yet not too stimulating, and has just the right lubricity for removing superficial swellings, sprains and rashes. Thus Zam-buk is a useful, reliable, and highly-concentrated, medicinal dressing always ready to instantly soothe pain, swiftly allay swelling and inflammation, expel deep-seated disease, and give new healthy skin. Moreover, users of Zam-buk have perfect confidence which alone comes from the knowledge that it is a refined herbal preparation and not an artificial ointment composed of clogging fats and crude drugs. Zam-buk is invaluable in all itching, chafed, and diseased conditions of the skin, whilst its swift, antiseptic healing makes it the ideal first-aid dressing for burns, scalds, cuts, etc. It is also the soothing remedy for piles. LOCKED DOORS

"Suspicion is the poison of friendship"

"Is that room haunted?" I asked Cam.

CAM had carried his pretty girl- bride over the threshold of her beautiful new home in the traditional manner. It was such a home which only great wealth and exquisite good taste could make possible. Joyously, breathlessly, Rosamond flitted from room to room, clapping her hands in ecstasy and wonderment.

And then . . . she paused before one unforbidding door upstairs — glanced at her husband — tried the handle . . . it was locked! Why? An anxious expression warned Rosamond to drop the subject. But, curiosity and suspicion got the better of her. "Is that room haunted?" she enquired, lightly. And all he said was:—"You're too much of a baby yet to be trusted with such a big problem!"

What a little spark is required to fan the flames of jealousy! Rosamond was hurt at her husband's apparent lack of confidence in her. And gradually there conjured up in her mind the thought that Cam was a modern Bluebeard — that behind that closed door was . . . Oh!

And later as Rosamond stood before that closed door which her own hands had unlocked against her husband's wishes, she began to shake from head to foot, too limp to turn the knob and come face to face with the haunting secret that was to wreck her life. Little did she realize that her sudden fear was a warning — one of those psychic messages from—who knows where?—warning her that behind that door lay . . .

But to appreciate this poignant story—taken from life — you must read it as told by the woman in whose life the episode is a continual nightmare . . . the memory and result of which she will carry with her to the grave. It is entitled: "LOCKED DOORS" — and appears in TRUE STORY MAGAZINE for APRIL — now on sale at the newsstands.
