VANCOUVER, July 6.—"Hon. H. H. Stevens is a competitor of the people of British Columbia in the railway business," said Hon. Ian Mackenzie, addressing a meeting at North Vancouver last night. 'Mr. Stevens is not in this fight as a public man," he said. "He is out to kill the P.G.E. Railway in which the people of this province have so much invested and in the remote event of his political friends getting into office he hopes to get a charter for his northern railway in return for his ser- McLaughlin," remarked A. Chris. McRae said it was absurd for Conservatives ville Mansions where the mayor reto suggest that men who had been engaged in political; warfare with the Dominion government were as capable of sitting around a table with the federal cabinet and settling the P.G.E. problem.

Mayor Wells Gray asked why Dr. Tolmie and Mr. Stevens did not do something for the province about the P.G.E. when they were members of a Conservative cabinet at Ottawa. "The same applies," he said, "to Asiatic exclusion issue which our Conservative members never raise except when in opposition at Ottawa.

Spectacular Independent Lady Using Radio and Airplane in Her Election Campaign Columbia

VANCOUVER, July 6 .- Mrs. Gladys Elspeth Cross, a wealthy woman from Golden and the independent candidate for Columbia riding, was reported last night to be flying to Golden in an airplane she is said to have purchased for use in the campaign.

Mrs. Cross opened the campaign Wednesday night when she gave half an hour's address over the Vancouver station. Special receiving sets were installed at Golden and other cities in the riding and the reception was perfect, according to telegraphic reports.

After the radio Mrs. Cross left for a secret destination, planning to fly to Golden through the Kicking Horse Pass. The starting CHILD BURED point of the flight is believed to be Seattle as no machines were agailable either at Vancouver or Victoria.

HANDLE NEWS TO NEW YORK

In regular Communication With Harold McCrackan North of Siberia

A long news despatch of several thousand words from the Stoll-McCracken Arctic Expedition to the New York Times was relayed through the local amateur radio station 5GT on Wednesday night. It was received over the air by the operators of this station and then relayed by Canadian National Telegraphs to its destination in New York. The despatch in turn came back in part to Vancouver and on to this city. The local station is in communication with the expedition, now north of Siberia, almost every day and each night messages from the exploration party to the outside world are handled.

Harold McCracken Finds Mummies of Stone Age Men at Aleutian Islands Enclosed Wooden Two-chambered Vault

NEW YORK, July 6 .- Harold McCracken, head of the expedition of the American museum of natural history to the Aleutian Islands, in a special radio and telegraph message to New York Times, says the expedition believes it has found the mummified remains of stone age men.

Four mummified bodies, three adults and one infant, were found on the summit of an almost inaccessible island along with their clothing, domestic articles, hunting weapons.

The tomb bore evidence of Mongolian influence but there was nothing to indicate contact with ancient or modern civilization. The vault in which the bodies were found, was well shaped and mortised, drift logs held together by bone nails and had been wedged into a rock crevice on an almost unscalable peak.

The vault was divided into two parts, in one of which was a man evidently of high standing, and in the other the bodies of the adults and a child. The body of the ancient ice king was clothed in otter skins surmounting a shirt of bird skins, both elaborately decorated.

Wrapped around the body was a cloth of skins of northern animals surmounted by a layer of woven grass. The whole was enclosed in parchment like a layer of sea lion intestine.
