Dedicated to the Open Mind

TERE is a building in which "mass production" is unknown, in which the roar of massive machinery is unheard, from which "assembly lines" with their rows of watchful craftsmen are noticeably absent-Yet this building has contributed... is still contributing : : immeasurably, to the degree of motor-car luxury, performance and value which marks the products of General Motors.

Here in the General Motors Research Laboratory, the greatest staff of automotive engineers in the world is engaged in the myriad activities which enter into the building of a General Motors car. On one hand we see a new system of carburetion being studied. On another, a type of cylinder-head takes form. Here, a new engineering principle is discovered. There, an existing practice receives revision.

And nowhere, in all this vast laboratory building, is there ever the expression of complete satisfaction. No discovery, however vital, is considered final. No achievement, however great, is relinquished as complete. Every fact and every theory is always subject to revision . . . to refinement . . . to improvement. It is a building dedicated to "The Open Mind."

Small wonder, then, that from this great research inestimable value to the purchaser of every General Motors car . . : discoveries ruthlessly tested on the uncompromising acres of the General Motors International Proving Ground. It is thus that General Motors accepts laboratory should come discoveries of the responsibility which leadership imposes-to study always new ways and means of giving greater value in better cars to the public, which confers that leadership upon it.

It is fitting that the world's leading automobile organization should seek, through the world's greatest automotive research laboratories, to make the greatest possible contributions to the satisfaction of the automobile buyer. GM-20-28
