Strikers In Australia Thrash Free Workers

Storm Labor Bureau at Port Adelaide and Also Drive Volunteers From Snips Lying in the Harbor

MELBOURNE, Australia, September 27. — About two thousand striking waterside workers forced the gates of the "Free Labor" bureau at Port Adelaide today, chased volunteer workers out and thrashed them. Then they forced their way aboard some of the ships lying in port on which volunteers were working.

Trade Union leaders assisted the police in restoring order and all volunteer workers were taken to the city. Ten of the volunteers were reported to have been severely injured.

MET VIOLENT UNKNOWN DEATH

NEW WESTMINSTER, Sept. 27 -Pete Arzoff, 35 years of age, met a violent death but was not thrown or dropped against a hard surface. There was no evidence of strangulation or poison. This was the autopsy report presented to the coroner's jury at the inquest yesterday. Arzoff had six ribs on the left side fractured, the liver ruptured, and there was some bleeding of the kidneys. The man is believed to have been dead for two weeks.

"That Peter Arzoff, whose body was found last Saturday night in the bush near Mallardville met "death from violence at the hands of persons or persons unknown" was the verdict of the coroner's jury that investigated the death.

Arzoff was a Powell River logger and had been visiting here. No arrests have yet been made and the woman who was held has been released.
