CAMILLE TO BE HERE WEEK END

Cleopatra and Sappho and Other Historic Figures to be Seen in Classic

Assembling in one scene all the most famous sirens of history, the makers or Norma Talmadge's modern screen play "Camille" have selected the pick of Hollywood's beauties to portry Cleopatra, Sappho, Du Barry and others whose seductive charms swayed men and nations.

This concourse of ancient, medieval and modern sirens which forms one of the highlights in "Camille" is a mad revel at the Dumas heroine's home. The notable Lorelels, who played havoc with hearts in each period, are represented. At the peak of the festivities the "Lady of the Camellias," most fascinating and exotic of them all, enters and her costume brings gasps from even the other sirens. She is the last word in women loved by men, a girl who has dukes and counts at her feet, but who finally tires of wealth and gaiety and gives her heart to a comparatively poor youth.

That is "Camille," the siren who found her soul.

The picture is to be shown here at the week-end.

HATE TURNS TO LOVE IN MONTE BLUE PLAY

Terrific Story of Human Passion is That of "Bitter Apples"

Monte Blue, star of "Bitter Apples," here tonight, gives a performance which will add laurels to his already great fame.

He is cast as John Wyncote, son of a defaulting bank president, who, dying, has left the fury of bankrupted depositors to be met by his boy, heir to the bad name which his father has left, and to the hatred of hundreds, especially that of Maria and Stefani Blanco (Myrna Loy and Paul Ellis), children of a ruined creditor who has committed suicide.

Wyncote, to escape from the distressing situation, after ordering his attorney to sell all and apply the proceeds dollar for dollar, decides to take a long sea voyage. The vindictive couple secretly take passage on the ship, Stefani as a steward, Maria as a foot-loose passenger. Her scheme is to make love to young Wyncote, marry him, and then turn on the torture. This she does. Scarcely have the words of the ceremony aboard ship left the captain's lips when she turns on her husband with shrill vituperation.

Shipwreck follows—pirates — furious fighting on Wyncote's part for the woman he loves, and at last there is the understanding for which he has striven, and calm seas on which to pursue the belated honeymoon.

It is a terrific story, human, burning, with all the fury of the elements.

INFERIORITY COMPLEX SEEN IN "POOR NUT"

Jack Mulhall Coming at Mid-week in College Play Mostly Comedy

Jack Mulhall comes at the mid-week in an entirely new characterization.

Jack has been the smiling Irish lad and the tough "egg" in so many pictures that his fans will hardly recognize him when they see him in "The Poor Nut," his latest First National picture.

In this story of college life, Jack plays the part of a student who suffers from an "inferiority complex" that gives him the title of the "poor nut." Through the influence of a beautiful girl and the ability to run on the cinder path Jack gains his proper equilibrium and becomes the idol of the college.

The play of the same title, from which this picture was adapted, ran in New York for a full year to packed houses, and the picture is said to surpass the play in interest. Charlie Murray in the role of an Irish athletic trainer helps Jack along in splendid shape with the comedy, as do Jane Winton and Jean Arthur, the two principal feminine players of the cast.

FIVE YEAR'S SERVICE.

Editor Daily News.

Will you kindly grant me the favor of a little of your space in which to thank those who voted for me in the late municipal election.

I failed to obtain re-election on this occasion after five years service of the Board of Works Committee during most of this period, which committee was responsible for the wonderful progress made in converting our temporary roads into permanent ones, I feel that my experience may be of help to my successors and therefore stand ready to give them the benefit of it at any time, my aim being to do all I can to help the development of our city.

Thanking you, Mr. Editor, for publishing this. I remain, yours truly,

R. F. PERRY.

SPECIAL SERVICES AT BAPTIST CHURCH

Reopening of Building Marked by Music and Flowers

The services in the Baptist Church yesterday were of a special nature to mark the re-opening of the renovated building. In the morning the junior choir gave special musical numbers. The evening service was commenced with an organ recital by W. Vaughan Davies who demonstrated in a masterful way the powers of the new organ which will prove a great asset to church worship. Miss E. Davies rendered "He Shall Feed His Flock," and Ernest Smith sang "Recessional," both of which were much appreciated. The choir sang an anthem, the solo part being ably taken by R Howard. The pastor gave an eloquent address which was listened to by the large congregation with keen appreciation.

The new pews are the last word in comfort and workmanship and the church presented a beautiful interior finish, being bedecked with cut flowers and plants also added to its attractiveness.

PETER KYNE STORY "CALIFORNIA" TUESDAY

Peter B. Kyne, author of many Western fiction stories for book, magazine and screen, wrote the story on which "California," Tim McCoy's latest Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer historical Western film drama here tomorrow night, was based. The story is a particularly colorful one and is the most typical tale of early California since "The Girl of the Golden West." It is the story of the love of an American marine officer for the daughter of a wealthy Spanish family at the time of the American occupation of the territory during the Mexican War. Dorothy Sebastian has the role of the beautiful senorita.

WEEK'S SURVEY LOCAL MARKET

Little Change in Prices; Marmalade Oranges Next Week

The week's survey of the local markets discloses little change since last week and provides little worthy of special note. There has been little variation in prices either.

In the grocery stores, the promised increase in the price of matches is now in force. Anjou pears and red grapes are showing about the last for the season. Next week, the only shipment of marmalade oranges will be available. Time was when bitter oranges were in great demand for marmalade, but nowadays people are not so particular as to what they call marmalade, and grape fruit, sweet oranges and lemons are often to be seen, both singly and together, in one jar and the one word "marmalade" whose etymology is shrouded in mystery, covers the lot. Why this vitamin-abounding delectable mixture should be called marmalade and why its manufacture until very recent years has been confined to the towns of Dundee and Paisley in Scotland—these are two questions never satisfactorily cleared up. Like the word golf—or "gowff" to give it the colloquial pronunciation. Why Gowff? But no one knows! It has no connection with the club, nor the ball, nor yet with the turf on which the game is played. And its derivation like that of marmalade is lost in the mists of Scottish antiquity. It just is! And neither marmalade nor golf have any apologies to make either. Both with their national characteristic, are scattered worldwide, and apparently appreciated.
