EAGLES ATTACK AEROPLANES

Number of Encounters are Reported by British Pilots
CROYDON, England, Jan. 17.—Eagles, startled by invasion of their aerial precincts, have become a menace to flyers in Europe. Bird societies of the British Isles and associations of airmen alike have set out to collect information which it is hoped will help aviators to protect themselves from danger of attack by the birds.
Some of the adventures of aviators with eagles have been narrowing in the extreme, even to the point of fatality. The eagle seems to have no fear of an airplane much bigger than itself.
A British aviator was flying high over a chain of hills in misty weather when he saw a great bird dashing straight at his plane. Without slackening speed the eagle dove for the plane and collided with the propeller, breaking it to pieces. The eagle was killed, but the aviator was in great difficulties in having to make a forced landing in awkward country.
Another British pilot encountered a huge eagle over a mountain range. The eagle flew around the plane in circles, growing ever less in diameter, evidently trying to pick out the most vulnerable part of the plane for an attack. The pilot moved his head, and this caught the eye of the eagle, who prepared for the swoop. The pilot remembered a pistol in the locker near his seat. He drew it and fired. He did not hit the eagle, but he frightened it and the big bird flew away.

PUGNACIOUS VARIETY
The mountains behind Athens contain eagles of particularly pugnacious character. An aeroplane was flying over the mountains recently when several eagles swooped down and attacked it simultaneously. Their dashes at the machine so crippled it that the pilot was forced to descend quickly, and landed so badly that he and a passenger were injured.
A pilot flying from Paris to Madrid met an eagle which apparently challenged him to a high flying contest. The bird soared, and so did the plane. Higher and higher they went, until the eagle's wings began to flag and its strength failed. The eagle suddenly stretched out its wings and sailed away to earth, leaving the plane master.
Even smaller birds, such as swallows, evince no fear of a plane, according to other British pilots.

MARCIL IS NOT ONE TO ATTACK

Himself Went to France and Was Given Honors When Catholics Were Persecuted There
(Nelson News)
Hon. Charles Marcil, a distinguished Quebec member of parliament and a former deputy-speaker, is attacking Sir Henry Thornton, president of the Canadian National railways, for consenting to make a report for the Mexican government upon the Mexican railways, asking the ground that Mexico's alleged mistreatment of its Catholic citizens made acceptance by a Canadian official impossible.
The genial and able French-Canadian statesman is now setting up for Sir Henry Thornton a standard he has not applied to himself.
Twenty years ago France, then very largely dominated by infidelity, was pursuing just the same course toward the Catholics that the Mexican government is, confiscating, banning, and generally earning opprobrium from the Catholic world. What did Mr. Marcil do? As he himself tells in the "Parliamentary Guide," he went to France, made a critical study of French parliamentary institutions, and accepted at the hands of the French government a knighthood in the Legion of Honor.
There was, of course, not any real reason why Mr. Marcil should not have admitted that France had its good points, and have accepted any honor the government of that country had to bestow.

Equally there is no reason any Canadian, in either public or private life, for international reasons should not do any expert service for the Mexican government he is able to, no reason whatever—and especially is this so if he conceives that his service will contribute to the making of good relations.
Criticism of Sir Henry for this particular act cannot validly rest on this basis.

Washington D. C.—THE NATIONAL MUSEUM in this city has devoted an entire section to an historical exhibit of His Master's Voice gramophones invented, designed and presented by Mr. Emile Berliner, inventor of the first disc gramophone.
In addition to the exhibit of instruments there is a complete exhibit of records.
Each instrument and each record shows represents a distinct step forward in the talking machine art, and each item is the first unit of its particular kind made.
The exhibit contains first records and first instruments complete from 1887 to 1904, and is said to be the most comprehensive exhibit of gramophones in various stages of development ever gathered together in any museum.
The exhibit represents the work and collection of a life-time on the part of the famous inventor, work which ex-

RUSSIANS AT GENEVA CAUSED SOME FUSS AS RESULT POLICE EFFORT

NEW YORK, Jan. 17.—With the return of officials who attended the recent meeting of the League of Nations at Geneva, an interesting story has come to light regarding the visit of the Russian delegation, which started and puzzled the conference by proposing immediate and complete disarmament by all nations.
The delegation was housed in a well-known hotel. With the recollection of the assassin's in Geneva two years ago, the authorities determined there should be no depiction of the incident. The hotel where the Russians lived was picketed throughout with detectives and guards, and special officers followed the Russians everywhere they went. The Russians were allotted a special dining room and took their meals under guard.
Fear of a stray bullet, coupled with the excitement of the disturbance of the accustomed quiet of the house, led many guests to change their hotel. The Canadian delegation had reserved quarters there and they arrived in the middle of the fuss. Senator Dandurand was advised not to live there. He did not change his quarters however. He is said to have remarked: "If we do get a bullet intended for somebody else, I suppose Canada will be entitled to apologies."
LONDON, Jan. 17.—What becomes of solicitors who, through professional malpractice, are "struck off the rolls"? A proportion of them, it is to be feared, join the underworld more or less rapidly. Hitherto, however, it has been fairly easy for such a one to make a living by becoming employed with firms of solicitors. This latter practice, though, will be gravely interfered with if the Solicitors' Bill, now before Parliament, becomes law.
The bill, which is backed by all three parties, provides that without the written permission of the Law Society no solicitor shall employ or remunerate any person, who, to the knowledge of such solicitor, is struck off the roll of solicitors or is suspended from practicing as a solicitor. Power is given the society to deal with any breach of this prohibition, which does not apply to a solicitor struck off at his own request.
Penalties are provided for any "struck off" person who seeks or accepts employment with a solicitor without disclosing the fact that he has been struck off or suspended.
