

Visitor To City Had Perilous Voyage Coming From Arctic After Going Down Mackenzie

A terrific five-day storm in Behring Sea while coming out on the Hudson Bay trading steamer Baychimo and several encounters with the ice in the Arctic Ocean were the most thrilling experiences of a trip made to the north coast of this continent during the past summer by Dr. R. Agnew, well known central interior dentist, who arrived in the city from Vancouver yesterday and proceeded this morning to Terrace and other interior points to resume his winter work.

Dr. Agnew spent over four months in the Far North during the summer and estimates that he travelled 10,000 miles. He made the trip to give dental service to Hudson Bay Co. employees at the various points in the Far North.

Leaving Edmonton on May 22 for Water Ways, Dr. Agnew went to Lake Athabasca and thence down the Mackenzie River to Akavik near its mouth aboard the river boat Distributor, which formerly plied from Prince Rupert to Hazelton, and which makes the trip once a year and proceeded thence by native schooner to the mouth of the river and into the Arctic Ocean to Herschel Island. Ice and fog was encountered on the trip and there were times when it looked to the tenderfoot that they could not get through. Herschel Island was, however, safely reached.

At Herschel Island, where Dr. Agnew met the Philadelphia bird specimen seeking party headed by Capt. Perfilieff which was here ten days ago, he boarded the steamer Baychimo aboard which he travelled to Perry River, 1500 miles east of Herschel Island on the Arctic coast. Stops were made at the various trading posts which are visiting thus but once a year by the ship which takes in their supplies and carries out the twelve months' collection of furs. On the Baychimo, which encountered much ice in the Arctic Ocean, Dr. Agnew came right out to Vancouver, reaching the southern city on September 21 after having left Herschel Island on August 1.

The whole trip was one of much interest and experience, stated Dr. Agnew, and one which he would not mind at all making again.

Speaking of the teeth of the Arctic Eskimos, Dr. Agnew says they are perfectly good, though never cleaned, as long as the Eskimo remains in his aboriginal state. Coming in contact with civilization, however, there is a tendency to decay and pyhorrea. The teeth of the Eskimo are often worn right down to the gum by reason of the biting of the hide in the making of mukluks, their footwear.

The northern Indians have lived in the vicinity of settlements so long and eat candy and such sweets so generally that their teeth rapidly decay.
