TALE OF PERILOUS RIDE ACROSS RIVER ON ICE FLOE WITH HORSES

PRINCE ALBERT, Sask., April 12.—Charles Smith, straw boss of camp "B" of "The Pas Lumber Company," north of here, was the hero of a tale which is without parallel in these parts.

While a hundred men and fifty horses were encamped on the north bank of the Saskatchewan river, near Nipawin, prior to crossing the river into the village, the ice began to move. Following a brief conference, they decided to chance a crossing. The horses were driven through the fast rising river water and after great difficulty both horses and men succeeded in gaining a position on one of the large floes.

The fice with its strange freight was carried nearly a mile downstream by the current and through the movement of the ice, the men and horses were separated from shore by a channel of water nearly 150 feet wide. Realizing the predicament of the party, Mr. Smith volunteered to swim to shore in an effort to direct the floe shoreward. A rope was tied around his waist and he plunged into the icy torrent, fully clothed.

The same applies to correcting constipation. The only satisfactory remedy is one which, while relieving congestion, strengthens bowels, liver and kidneys to act without daily medicine. That is why Fruit-a-lives is the public favorite. Made only of fresh fruit juices and tonics, its whole effect on the system is natural and strengthening. Try it. 25c and 50c a box.

Reaching the shore after several narrow escapes from careening ice floes, Smith fixed the end of the rope to a tree and gradually succeeded in swinging the huge floe toward land. As soon as the ice grounded the men jumped ashore and drove the horses to safety. Less than fifteen minutes after the floe had been vacated it broke up.

JUDGE WOULD STOP CRIME

CAT ONE OF BEST AGENCIES SAYS JUDGE KAVANAUGH OF CHICAGO: LAW IS WEAK

CHICAGO, April 12.—Thirty-three years on the bench have convinced Judge Marcus Kavanaugh of two things.

1. That there are 350,000 persons in the United States who live partly or wholly by crime, who committed 12,000 murders last year, and who obtained illegally in the same period enough money to pay for the building of the Panama Canal.

2. That there are "simple methods of relief" available, if only the public would insist upon their adoption.

Judge Kavanaugh, who sits on the Superior Court bench, has based his opinions not only upon his long experience but upon three years of intensive study of the crime situation. His conclusions are presented in "The Criminal and his Allies," a book now on the presses.

Many agencies of law are blamed by Judge Kavanaugh for the conditions he pictures—governors, legislators, prosecuting attorneys, police, and the Supreme Court. Chief responsibility, however, he attaches to the public for indifference. A country, he declares, earns the crime it suffers.

"Public apathy," "quibbling courts of review," "antiquated legal processes," and "new processes designed to protect the criminal rather than the public," are some of his criticisms. He defends the death penalty and encourages the use of the lash in these words:

"No underworld lord can retain the respect of his followers after he has wined under the pain of a whipping. The cat-o-nine tails is feared more by the moron and racketeer than a jail sentence."

Judge Kavanaugh offers a remedy for delays occasioned by trial technicalities. A statute of 18 words, he believes, would aid greatly. "All laws and rules of courts," he writes, "concerning forms, practice and procedure, shall be directory only, and not mandatory."

Employment of aliens in modern criminal procedure, Judge Kavanaugh holds, is "another instance of pampering the lawbreaker." The juror suggested that if Socrates had been given a trial before an English speaking jury and been defended by a modern lawyer, using an insanity defense, "he need never have drunk the hemlock."

Ruth Snyder's slaying of her husband is cited by Judge Kavanaugh in defense of his statement that the female criminal is more to be feared than the male. He says:

"No man can be as good as a good woman. No man can be as bad as a bad woman. A woman is always more hurt by her fall than is a man by his fall, for the reason that a man only drops from the first story window, while a woman tumbles from the roof."

The Sacco-Vanzetti case is mentioned as an example of how Judge Kavanaugh believes the present court system delays justice which, he holds, should be prompt to be most effective as a deterrent.

WEIRD AND NOVEL IS WEEK-END PICTURE

"The Gorilla" said to Combine Last Word in Chills and Last Laugh in Merriment

Combining the last word in chills with the last laugh in merriment, the picturization of Ralph Spence's famous mystery-comedy, "The Gorilla," will be shown here tomorrow and Saturday.

This is the show that rocked Broadway for a year. In its film form it has been changed somewhat. It is reported by First National Pictures, in order to offer a new mystery tangle to those who may have seen the stage presentation. That a great many have seen it is due to the fact that during the last two years eight stage companies toured this country and Great Britain, scoring a sensational success everywhere.

Weird and novel settings and exceptional lighting effects are said to make the screen version of "The Gorilla" even more spooky than it was on the stage. Charlie Murray and Fred Kelsey, as the two celebrated sleuths, Mulligan and Carthy, who hear all, see all and know nothing, provide the comedy. The supporting cast is all-star, headed by Alice Day, petite leading lady.

An interesting note in connection with the screening of "The Gorilla" was that the utmost secrecy was observed by all concerned in the production. Members of the cast were kept unlightened as to what the ending of the picture would be like until the last part of the last reel. Mr. Small, the producer, kept the last three pages of the script in his personal safe and permitted no one but himself, Director Santell and James T. O'Donahoe, who prepared the script, to see it. Following the completion of the screening, Mr. Small directed that no one was to make public the solution of the mystery.
