"THE PATRIOT" OPENS TONIGHT; BIG FILM IS WONDER PICTURE

Odd Character Admirably Presented by Emil Jannings at The Capitol

Czar Paul I of Russia who reigned during the latter part of the 18th century gained international fame by being murdered! This fact was recently brought to light with the presentation of Alfred Neumann's play, "The Patriot."

Paramount has taken this famous play and adapted it to the screen not only for its interesting possibilities but principally because the leading character offered Emil Jannings, the acknowledged greatest dramatic actor on the screen today, the opportunity to reach the peak of his dramatic ability.

Suffice it to say Jannings has made Paul I real and almost terrible, so realistic does he interpret the role of mad man. For Paul the First was mad. He had the heart of a child and the brain of a tiger. He once ordered a regiment to march and then forgot to halt them. They were in such a state of fear of him that they marched into Siberia, where one by one they dropped. Paul being informed of this laughed heartily.

 "HE WANTS TO FIGHT"
 Emil Jannings has evidenced a desire to do a picture of the prize ring. Why? Two reasons. First, he enjoys the sport. Second, he wants to play the role of a heavy-weight fighter in a motion picture.
 One reason advanced for the actor's great ability in impersonating characters so vividly on the screen is because he studies them and when facing the camera actually believes he is the original. When engaged in making "The Patriot" he actually was accused of being "off" so great was his concentration with business on hand.
 So when he's given his opportunity to do a story of the prize ring, his fans may rest assured he'll be no "set-up" for anyone.
 It will be a classic.

 This great film shows at the Capitol for two nights only, to night and Thursday.

TIGER MINE

Considerable Excitement Caused at Alice Arm by Find

There is considerable excitement at Alice Arm over the fact that high grade silver ore has been encountered in No. 3 tunnel of the Tiger mine 200 feet from the portal though it was not expected to be reached until an additional 50 feet had been driven. The point at which the ore was encountered gives a depth of 415 feet below the surface outcroppings and the location was comparatively easy. The ore has been driven into for more than two feet.

Ore has now been developed at three levels on the Tiger and the successful exploratory underground work indicates a large tonnage of ore, much of which will probably be of a high grade character. A site is now being selected for a still lower tunnel to encounter the ore body at a depth of 800 feet. Work on the tunnel is starting immediately and it will be commenced on the old Dolly Varden railway grade.

Powder and supplies are being taken in to ensure continuous operation during the coming winter by the Utility Mining & Finance Co.
