Landidates Attention

On next Friday, September 14, the Prince Rupert Daily News' automobile and subscription campaign will come to a final end.

As announced at the beginning (in No. 19 of the rules and regulations) the last period will be under a sealed ballot box. This system insures absolute fairness to all concerned as no one, not even the Campaign Manager or the Publishers, will know what the individual candidates are doing this last period.

Full details and instructions governing the last week will be printed in next Monday's News. It is the duty of each candidate to study these instructions carefully. If any feature is not perfectly clear to you, you should confer with the Campaign Manager.

Next Tuesday and Wednesday have been set aside as days in which candidates are to come to this office and check and verify their vote, cash and point totals with those of the Campaign Manager. Get your totals ready now, and come in either Tuesday or Wednesday to check with the records this office has for you.

Please be very careful in filling out the subscription stubs, always write or print the name, address and amount plainly so there can be no mistake in crediting the subscription. Be sure your name is signed to each stub or coupon you turn in.

There can be no more stalling or taking promises now, as the campaign ends forever on next Friday.
