Millions Take Part in Great Victory Celebration at Paris the Grand Triumphant March

Half Century's Bitterness Swept Away by Greatest Doings Since Crushing Defeat by Germans 1870; Marshal Joffre Marched with Foch in the Procession Through Streets of Paris.

(Special to The News via G. T. P. Telegraphs.)

Paris, July 15.—Yesterday France swept aside all traces of half a century's bitterness and woe with the greatest celebration in her history, the Victory parade. Hundreds of thousands of people from all parts of the country crowded into Paris and cheered wildly in their five-mile triumphant march through the heart of the city. It was the day France had awaited since her crushing defeat by the Prussians in 1870 and she made the most of it.

The city was a riot of color when the 25,000 veterans began the march. Flags were flown from every building and the streets tried to out do each other in gala attire. It was just nine o'clock when Marshal Foch and Marshal Joffre with their staffs rode past the arch of triumph.

According to an estimate of the prefect of police 2,000,000 visitors from the suburbs and provinces joined with the 4,000,000 persons living in Paris in the victory celebration which was declared unique in many respects. Many quaint provincial costumes of country folk were seen in the parade and on the streets.

NEW SCHOOL BYLAW TO BE SUBMITTED

Sum of $150,000 to be Raised for New Building on Acropolis Hill.

On the recommendation of the Finance Committee the City Council last night decided to submit a bylaw as soon as possible for a new permanent school building on Acropolis Hill.

Alderman Kirkpatrick, who is also a school trustee, explained that there were at present 585 pupils. Owing to the overcrowded condition of the schools a room had been opened on Second Ave. and another room was rented from the Methodist Church for manual training. At the high school one more room would be needed after the holidays which would crowd out one of the present classes at Borden St. and at the other schools several new rooms would be required to accommodate the increasing population. There was no doubt as to the need of a new building. The only questions that arose were where the building should be placed and should it be of a permanent character.

The trustees had decided that it would be best to erect a permanent building on Acropolis Hill. For a permanent building they could issue forty-year bonds which would require annual payments from the city of $9,340 in order to raise $150,000. To raise $100,000 for a wooden building they would have to issue ten-year bonds, the payments on which would amount to $14,524 a year. In view of this they had decided that it would be better for the taxpayers to have a good permanent building which would be a credit to the city.

In connection with the choice of site, Alderman Kirkpatrick explained that there was no other site available. The medical health officer advised against the Ninth Avenue site as most unsuitable and as not providing any playgrounds for the children. With the school at Acropolis Hill they could utilize the athletic grounds for playgrounds which would be a great boon to the young people.
