DAILY EDITION. Thursday, July 17, 1919.

Is It Politics or Real Opinion.

The American Republican senators are raising Hades with the President for giving Shantung to the Japanese, but it must be remembered that the presidential election is not so very far off, and no one knows yet whether Wilson is to be a candidate or not. If he is to be a candidate it is a good opportunity for his opponents to chide him for giving Japan a foothold in China. They will make a good deal of it in the campaign and that may be the chief reason for the opposition.

Under party government and with an election in sight it is very difficult to get an honest opinion from a politician. That is why many people are not sure whether the Republican senators are in earnest over their opposition to Japan or whether they are simply electioneering.

Campaign for Blind In This City.

There is about to be a campaign in this city in aid of the blind, and more particularly in aid of those who were made blind during the war. It is one of the causes in which Prince Rupert people have already taken some interest and doubtless this time they will see their duty and see it large. For the man who lost either of his senses as a result of his efforts in the cause of liberty, enough cannot be done. St. Dunstons and similar institutions are teaching the men to be self supporting and to enjoy life. Rupert people have not been backward in good causes in the past and doubtless they will see their way to writing the figures large this time.

Individualistic Or Socialistic.

Recent movements of a more or less revolutionary character have set people thinking about the possibilities of changing or improving the present system. In dealing with this a writer in the Veteran's Weekly says:

"Without the true social spirit the most cunningly devised system it is possible to imagine will fail to work. You cannot run new wine into old bottles without endangering the cellar floor. The psychology of the people is still pronouncedly individualistic, and in no class of the community is that more strictly true than in that of the so-called 'proletariat'."

"To alter society in any important detail you must change its psychology. And to change successfully an individualistic community into a Socialistic, a generation at least, of Socialistic education will be required. New subjects, new methods, and above all a new spirit must be introduced into our schools, to the end that our growing youths shall become imbued with ideals of service, and self-sacrifice, instead of with motives for self-seeking and getting on in the world as at present."

"In thinking over these matters soldier-citizens who, perhaps, have been more affected by the inconvenience of the strikes than any other single class, should remember one fact of a most pertinent kind. It is this:

"One main charge of the Socialist party against the present system is that while representative institutions, such as we now have, may be theoretically correct, they do not work; or work only to the advantage of the moneyed classes."

Create New Spirit Before Real Change.

"Soldier-citizens know that to be true from a personal experience, more convincing than has fallen to the lot of any other single class in the community. But, also, they will remember that under Socialism or any other communistic organization of society, representative institutions must continue, and may become even more general than they are at present."

"The question therefore arises, what chance is there that these institutions, which work badly now, will work better—the people remaining as they are—in a Socialistic state? The answer is, None!

"The only chance of improvement, under any circumstances, lies in the creation of a new spirit in the community. A spirit that is less selfish, and more understanding. That produces a greater sense of honor, and of responsibility, alike in the separate individuals of the people, and their representative men."

"You cannot change the psychology of a people by a mere stroke of the pen. It takes time. It requires a long and continuous process of education, and of moral and spiritual culture to effect the necessary changes. When these are made representative institutions will work to the satisfaction of all. Then Socialism in its fullest expression may have the right to appear."

Eastern Prices on Community Silver

We just received a copy of the Robert Simpson Co. catalogue and find that our prices on Community Silver are exactly the same as theirs. We mention this as proof that we are trying to give our customers as good service as they can get anywhere.

Other things we can prove it by are Big Ben clocks. Waltham and other watches. Waterman pens, Rogers silver and almost any well known article.
