Consolidated to Open Assay Office in Prince Rupert Sending G. W. Dunn of Rossland to Take Charge of It

George W. Dunn, one of the old-timers of the southern interior mining camp of Rossland, will arrive in Prince Rupert about the end of this month to take charge of an assay office which is to be opened here by the Consolidated Mining & Smelting Co. in connection with its extensive interests in the district surrounding the city.

Mr. Dunn has been for many years in charge of the Consolidated's assay office at Rossland and is one of that town's most highly respected citizens. He will bring his wife and son, Hawthorne, here with him. Mr. Dunn has served as an alderman at Rossland practically continuously since 1914. He was formerly chief chemist in the Rossland mines. He is active in Masonic and United Church work.

To the Electors of Prince Rupert:

May I express my deep appreciation for the splendid expression of confidence shown in me at the polls yesterday, an expression which I construe as an endorsation of our policies during the past year, and other than a personal matter.

Coupled with my appreciation, may I once more convey my assurance that strict attention and care of the city's interests and welfare will again be my aim during the coming year.

S. P. McMORDIE.
