LAND THE SOLUTION

To the Editor—

As reasonable human beings, dependent on our individual labor for a livelihood, let us look upon the world's unrest of the present day in a fair and sensible manner. We may talk our heads off; bring chaos and suffering to those who have had enough of it; agitate and riot, until we bring about the same state of affairs we view in Europe nowadays and will not accomplish the emancipation of the workingman from profiteering and injustice, until we regulate things by the only means that ever will be used now or hereafter—that is by manhood and womanhood suffrage.

The city worker, manufacturer, dealer, profiteer and employer may arrive at some conclusion with respect to grievances, but they cannot make any arrangement for the middle-man and the farmer. The soil and the sea produce the means of livelihood and all this agitation is of some use if it drives to the land and sea the millions of men and women who cannot obtain employment or food, through the large number of drones subsisting on the over-production of the real producer.

Land Hungers for Men.

This world was never intended for the hiving of millions of non-producers, while the land hungers for those who may earn a good living, free from the turmoil caused by men and women seeking to obtain a commodity that is not digestible—such as gold, silver and paper money. Importing food, when we can raise it on our vast fields and water courses seems ridiculous. Imagine the farmer eating "King Oscar" brand of sardines from Norway with fish galore rotting in our rivers! Think of eating Swift's and Armour's hams and bacon because we do not raise pigs at home. Canned beef and vegetable soups from other countries, while grazing fields and open land can be found at our doors; exporting hides and paying ten dollars a pair for shoes; sending out minerals and importing the manufactured articles, from the same copper, iron, gold and silver—did Germany do this before the war?

Value of Farms.

If employer and employee would only think for a minute of the opportunities before their very eyes, and would understand that it is not a question of hours of labor, they would take up occupations serviceable to themselves and other men and women. Why are the farms so valuable at this time? Because when men had the opportunity to purchase cleared land at a dollar an acre, they could not be induced to purchase and till the land. The farmer does not consider the question of hours and returns. Some years he has a plentiful crop; other years he meets with reverses, but he sticks to his farm and does not complain when things happen over which he has no control.

Until the masses are educated to think and act for themselves they will be led by agitators and grafting speculators, tin-pot politicians and men of that calibre fomenting trouble. Let the thinking, sensible, well-meaning men and women think for themselves and cast votes for the honest men in their communities.

Sympathy Not Force.

We have the remedy to put down everything of the Bolshevik or any other class that is attempting the overthrow of good government. Forcing and starving the outlying communities in order that certain classes may settle their difficulties will antagonize the very people the working class desire to have associated with them. Sympathy is one thing, and starvation is another. Men's sympathy soon will pass away, when their wives and children are crying for food. We went no such events as we read of in Russia and Germany today.

It is the province of every man to earn an honest living in his own peculiar way, and to resign when he is dissatisfied, but when force is used to compel men, women and children to go without the necessities of life, such a condition of things will bring about the combination of men whether of one class or another, nothing but the condemnation of the majority of the people.
