Visitors Welcome To Prince Rupert.

The Vancouver and Victoria visitors who are here today are heartily welcomed by the Daily News. We have everything to gain by knowing each other better. We all here know about Vancouver and Victoria, but the residents of those cities are, as a whole, woefully ignorant of this port and its possibilities. We should like to advise our visitors that Prince Rupert is the greatest fishing port on the Pacific Ocean; that the city is the terminal port of a railway that has the best grade of any railway crossing the continent; that it is the supply centre for the richest mining districts in Western Canada; that the lumber wealth of this region is so well known that it needs no demonstration since the "Aeroplane spruce drive" of last year; that as a scenic centre the place is second to no other on the continent; that there is good hunting and fishing everywhere; that the port is several hundred miles nearer the Orient than any other on the coast; that we have the finest drydock on the coast and good cold storage facilities, and last but not least the people of Prince Rupert are a virile, hardy, aggressive, and sociable lot who are always ready to welcome a newcomer, be he rival in business or not.

Other Important Points in District.

It is impossible to dilate upon the claims of all the districts for recognition. Granby's mine at Anyox and the huge smelter are established institutions which the visitors will see for themselves. They will also see the huge modern coke ovens at that place. What they will fail to see will be the immense ore body on the Estall River not far from Prince Rupert which bids fair to rival the Hidden Creek mine at Anyox and the exploration of which is now being completed.

There are the mines of Queen Charlotte Islands, of Hazelton and Usk and other points up the Skeena Valley, there are the canneries of Skeena, Naas, and the Queen Charlottes and the possibilities of the extension of the trawling industry. Surf Inlet gold mines are not far distant and the lumber mills and pulp and paper possibilities of the district are unrivalled.

Stewart a Coming Mining Centre.

A town that is almost a suburb of Prince Rupert is Stewart. It is a coming mining centre of importance. Today in this paper there will be a Dominion Government advertisement calling for tenders for a large wharf there, and the Provincial Government is building an expensive piece of road along the foot of a cliff to connect the town with Hyder and with the rich Salmon River mines. Roads and trails are being built to the mines and ore shipments which commenced last winter will be continued in the autumn. Just now a great many of the mines are being developed.

Alice Arm Another Centre.

Alice Arm, best known as the terminus of the Dolly Varden Railway and the shipping port of the Tolly Varden mine, is coming to the fore as a mining centre. A short article on another page tells of some of the developments which are taking place at some of the mining properties. With the shipments being made from several mines in the near future, there is no doubt but outsiders will be attracted to this camp in large numbers.

Much Building Being Planned.

Many new buildings are being planned to commence here very soon. There are thirty dwellings to be erected under the Dominion Housing scheme and local people are planning new houses and business blocks. Several stores are just being completed and one or two are just having their foundations laid. Over twenty new residences have already been built here this year, and a new cold storage building is planned and the company incorporated that is to operate it. A new machine shop has just been commenced on the waterfront and another firm is preparing to put in a marine ways at Shawallans Passage. All this spells progress. It means that people have faith in the town and look for a great future for it.
