DR. KING HERE

Hon. Dr. J. H. King, minister of health and pensions in the Dominion government and British Columbia's representative in the federal cabinet, is a visitor in Prince Rupert today, and we are pleased to welcome him. Dr. King for some years now has played an important part in developments on the Pacific coast, particularly as far as federal financial assistance was concerned, and we hope he will find a warm spot in his heart for Prince Rupert.

Dr. King, J. W. deB. Farris, K.C., one of British Columbia's ablest public speakers, and Olof Hanson, Liberal nominee for Skeena in the next federal election, will address a public meeting in the Capitol Theatre tonight and, as we did for Hon. R. B. Bennett when he was here a little while ago, we would again urge the people to turn out and hear the questions of the day discussed—this time from the Liberal angle. We are told that Mr. Farris, in addition to other things, will have something to say in reply to certain statements made by Mr. Bennett. That should be interesting.

Dr. King holds an important place in Dominion contemporary affairs, and we are gratified that he has seen fit to pay a two-day visit to Prince Rupert. That will enable him the better to hear about and take up local questions, for, as far as the elective membership is concerned, Dr. King is actually today the member for all of British Columbia, as well as for his own riding of East Kootenay.

RENEWAL OF RELATIONS

Criticism, as may be expected, will be heard at the decision of Britain's Labor government to encourage a re-opening of diplomatic and business relations with Russia. No truck or trade with the Soviet has become almost a motto in certain circles in the old country, though probably not so much here.

However, there are two sides to this as almost any other question, and there seems to be as much reason in the argument that Russia may resume her repudiated obligations by being treated decently, as there is in the policy of cutting her off because she has treated us badly once. Resumption of relations has possibilities productive of considerable in the way of good results, and, as an experiment at least, there should be little harm in it for a while.

NAVAL DISARMAMENT

Overshadowing relations with Russia and all other matters today, of course, is the progress of negotiations between Great Britain and United States with a view to reaching an agreement on naval disarmament. Evidently, these negotiations are entering a very interesting stage, and, from all that can be heard, give promise of resulting in an accord which may be a more important milestone on the road to permanent peace in the world than anything which has happened since 1918.

If Ramsay MacDonald and Herbert Hoover come to common ground on the matter of naval limitations, the rest of the nations will pretty well be forced to follow.

Things are looking up indeed, and the progress of events within the next few days will be watched with keen interest throughout the world.

THE HELPING HAND

The British Chancellor of the Exchequer: "Good dog! I know you are hungry, but I'll try to get you something nice."
(Mr. Philip Snowden has in plain terms at the Hague conference insisted on Great Britain's receiving her fair share of the Reparation payments.) News of World.

JAP STUDENTS VISIT CANADA

Making Tour to Foster Japanese-American Good Will

WINNIPEG, Sept. 14.—On the last lap of a tour which has included a complete circle of the United States, a party of eight Japanese students left here this evening over Canadian National lines for the Pacific coast. The tour, organized by Kaju Nakamura, well known organizer of student tours, visited North America with the object of bringing the Japanese students into personal contact with the student bodies of America and to foster international good will between the two races.

Similar parties from the universities of the United States visited Japan this year and, although the visits to America on the part of the Japanese students have been frequent in the past, this is the first time such a tour has extended into Canada. This year, owing to the enterprise of the Asiatic traffic officials of the Canadian National Railways in bringing to the attention of Mr. Nakamura the great resources of Canada and its increasing trade relationship in the Orient, it was decided that the tour should return home through Canada. The tour will visit the principal cities of the west and will stop off for a few days at Jasper Park Lodge en route to Vancouver.

JOE GREER MENTIONED

Popular Young Business Man May Again Essay Mayoralty 'Tis Said

The name of Joe Greer, popular young haberdasher and former alderman, is now heard in connection with the 1930 mayoralty contest. Though Mr. Greer essayed to run two years ago, he went up against a strong field and lost out in a three-cornered contest.

In a straight fight, there are many who feel that Mr. Greer would have a good chance to win. He has many friends and is popular with them all. The fact that he is a young man would also have its appeal.

When mayoralty candidates are mentioned, the question comes up whether or not Ex-Mayor S. M. Newton will be a candidate. Many are inclined to believe that he may come out at the last minute as he is known to have done before. He is at present on a trip to Ontario but, before leaving, said he would be back next month.

Lobster Shortage Boosts Prices

PORTLAND, Me., Sept. 14.—Bad sailing weather and a resultant lack of bait has caused a shortage of lobsters which has sent prices soaring. Normally the shipment of live lobsters from Portland reaches its peak at about this season of the year, but at the present time the market is at a standstill. The shortage has reached an acute stage with no prospects of relief in sight, according to dealers, until the closed season in Nova Scotia and New Brunswick ends. At about the same time, around Sept. 15, lobsters will be coming in from the vicinity of Monhegan Island. The shortage of bait has forced lobstermen to bait their traps with swordfish bones and napes and left-overs from the sardine factories, but results have been far from satisfactory.

FISH MEAL AS CATTLE FEED

Government of British Columbia Encouraging Its Use

VICTORIA, Sept. 14.—As a means of building up the health of Western Canadian cattle, the British Columbia government is encouraging the use of fish meal as feed. The fish meal is manufactured from pilchards which are caught in millions off the west coast of Vancouver Island. According to Hon. S. L. Howe, commissioner of fisheries, it has been shown that calves fed on a ration of fish meal had at the end of a year an average height of two and a half inches in excess of the standard and an average weight of 30 pounds in excess of the standard weight. He added that herds fed on a ration of fish meal are free from goitre and abortion, and that cases of bovine tuberculosis are relatively unknown among cattle so fed.

BUCKINGHAM CIGARETTES
—voluntarily endorsed as "Throat-Easy" by leading Canadians are an outstanding achievement of Canadian manufacture.

They are made from carefully selected leaf, matured in wood after the manner of good wines, and blended with consummate skill by experts working to the exclusive Buckingham formula. The blend is heat-treated and air-conditioned to permanently retain its fine fragrance and mild aroma.

Buckingham Cigarettes are manufactured in the Tuckett plant at Hamilton, equipped with the most modern machinery known to the industry. Every stage of manufacture is scientifically controlled under the most ideal working conditions. And to positively assure strictly uniform quality always, Buckinghams are minutely inspected through every process of making.

The packaging of Buckingham Cigarettes is done by "ARENCO" machines, first introduced by Tuckett Limited. These machines count the cigarettes in twenties, place them in heavy foil wrappings, seal the packages, affix government excise stamp at the rate of 800,000 to 1,000,000 cigarettes per machine per day.

Buckingham Cigarettes are delivered fresh to tobacconists throughout Canada in sealed pouch packages, which preserve the fine Buckingham quality for the enjoyment of the smoker.

If you have never smoked Buckingham Cigarettes, try a package today.
