Great Submarine Upheaval Noticed

Master of Australian Ship Described Phenomenal Disturbances

SYDNEY, Australia, Sept. 14.—When the steamer Aelphryn was midway between Cape Maria van Dieman and Sydney recently she raised close to two submarine upheavals, according to her master, Captain James Stevenson, who said that without warning a great surge of water rose out of the sea and gradually grew to a height of about 30 feet before settling down again. He estimated that the width of the mass of water was between 15 and 20 feet.

A quarter of an hour later a second upheaval occurred in the same way. No sensation was felt on board the ship, but Captain Stevenson believes there must have been a terrific upheaval at the bottom of the sea.

Married Women Are Dismissed

Question Causing Wide Discussion In Australia Now

(By The Canadian Press)
 MELBOURNE, Australia, Sept. 13.—A large factory operating here and employing a large number of women has dismissed all its married women employees and will not engage any others in the future, according to F. J. Riley, secretary of the Manufacturing Grocers' Union. Other firms are considering similar action.

"The original practice of the firm when shortening hands was to retain those longest in the service," said Mr. Riley. "Some of the married women had been working for many years and they were retained while single women were dismissed. This caused widespread dissatisfaction, and the company then decided to weed out all married women and to engage in future only single women."

"In the manufacturing grocer industry," added Mr. Riley, "the proportion of married women is the lowest of the industries employing women. The rate is less than three per cent. In other industries the rate is 13 per cent." The question of employment of married women in factories is causing wide discussion in Australia at present.
