PRESERVING TIME IS NOW

Berries Will Be Gone Soon, But Other Fruits are Arriving.

Now is the time to buy fresh fruits for preserving. The market for strawberries is rapidly on the wane and local merchants are not sure from one train to another as to the possibility of getting a further supply. The up river berries which have been in such fine condition so far are now becoming less firm although still fairly plentiful. Apricots are now arriving in twenty pound crates which is a very convenient quantity for preserving.

There is very slight fluctuation in the prices in the more staple line of goods. Dry onions are down to ten cents per pound otherwise the vegetables remain the same. Meat prices have been falling steadily for the past few weeks and veal and mutton are now at a considerably lower value. Cooked ham has climbed the scale to 75 cents per pound.
