Was Never Reviewed One point that seems to have esmotely connected with the English court. When Gilbert and Sullivan were producing their immortal series of operas, they wrote one caller "Utopia Limited," in which there were allusions and even burlesque depictions of court ceremonies and general etiquette.

The music of this Gilbert and Surlivan opera was generally voted as agrecable as any Sullivan ever composed. Yet the opera had but a short run and has never been revived. King Edward, then Prince of Wales, went to see it once only, and no other member of the royal family paid it asecond visit. Certain scenes in it were said to have given grave offense in high quarters. In view of all this, the treatment of royalty and the court in Shaw's latest

Still Uses Latin

Was Used Recently in Convocation of Canterbury at St. Paul's Cathedral

LONDON, Sept. 11-It may surprise some good Anglicans to learn that at least one of the Occasional Forms of Service of the Church of England is still conducted in Latin.

This was used the other day at the opening of the Convocation of Convocation of Canterbury. The $1.35 service was held at St. Paul's Cathedral and followed the order 30c which is always used at the opening of Convocation immediately following a general election.

The processional psalms, the Litany, Anthem and Benediction were 15c any, Anthem and Benediction were all sung or said in Latin, and the Dean of St. Paul's delivered his 250 sermon in the same tongue. The holding of this service goes back 100 to the earliest days of parliamentary history.

THIS MILK IS MADE IN BRITISH COLUMBIA

That is one reason for buying it-another is that its double richness improves every dish in which it is used.
