VICTORIA, Dec. 26:-There is said to be a possibility of British Columbia having a minister of fisheries and that the matter will be brought before the legislature at its session next month. Now the Dominion still retains control of the fish up to the time the fishermen take them.

Up to a few weeks ago the Department of Marine and Fisheries in Ottawa was almost solely responsible for fisheries administration on this coast and it was to Ottawa that nearly all problems of the cannery interests of the coast were referred. There is, of course, a Vancouver office of the department ably manned, but questions of policy were for the Phone Red 399 most part up to Ottawa to decide.

The British Columbia Government has contented itself with the appointment of a fisheries commissioner to attend to the minor duties devolving upon it. The late Hon. William Sloan held this post along with the portfolio of minister of mines and at present Hon. S. L. Third Avenue Howe administers it jointly with the duties of provincial secretary.

Now, it is rumored, there may be RADIO a demand for a full-fledged department to take over control. Thus FURNITURE REPAIRS, PACKING lands, agriculture and mines would be joined by the fourth natural resource, fisheries, in official representation.

Babcock in Charge

Whether or not such a depart- ment is created, the deputy in charge will probably continue to be J. A. Babcock, now deputy minister of fisheries. Mr. Babcock is highly regarded by the industry in British Columbia and has been found to be sound in his theory and practice as fisheries expert. He is proving himself now not only a conservationist but an administrator.

While it is admitted that the Provincial Government must find some source of revenue to pay the cost of this new administrative work, the form of levy that will be used has not been decided.

Salmon canning interests of the coast have no option but to be satisfied with the decision of the privy council so they are philosophically accepting it and are hoping that they will benefit considerably through the fact of local rather than remote control of their opera-
