Work On New Steel Vessel Will Begin At Drydock in Two Weeks

Stated B. C. Keeley Before Leaving

B. C. Keeley, Pacific coast manager of Canadian National Steamships, announced before leaving for the south last night that work on the new steel car barge and tug, the contract for which was let recently, would commence at the drydock in about two weeks.

Not long ago the scow bringing the steel for this work to Prince Rupert capsized in the south and the steel is now in process of being salvaged. This caused delay in starting the work at Prince Rupert. In view of this and of the rumors that the work would not start this winter, Olof Hanson when in the south recently interviewed the railway and steamship officials and urged that there should be no unnecessary delay. As a result it has been decided to purchase some of the structural steel in British Columbia and begin the work just as soon as it arrives which is expected to be in two weeks.

Mr. Keeley said there had been no unnecessary delay. They could not begin work until the steel arrived and the unfortunate delay caused by the wrecking of the barge carrying it was only temporary.
