France Leads New Education

Schools by Mountain and Sea Are Infusing Fresh Spirit of Hope Into French Youth

PARIS, Dec. 31:—(By Josephine Hambleton, Canadian Press Staff Correspondent)—Shools of the mountain and the sea are breathing a new spirit into the educational system of France.

Old chateaux which saw the initiation of knights of the Middle Ages into the cult of chivalry; great old abbeys with their vaulted ceilings which once echoed only to church Latin of prayer and litany, today serve as residences for thousands of young people between the ages of 12 and 20. These are the more picturesque of the vacation colonies which are as varied in their character as the classes whom they serve.

They began with mountain colonies, started by a handful of professors and teachers who had been through the Great War and had lost faith in the old theories. The civilization they had helped to build had crumbled about their ears. They felt in some way culpable for the general cataclysm.

What had they to give a new generation as alien to the pre-war generation as if centuries rather than decades separated them?

To find an answer to the question a small group of teachers, with their young disciples, went into the mountains of Savoy. There they founded a kind of modern Table Round. At an elevation of 5,000 feet on the mountain road, they found a mediæval castle. It was built on a peak, like most castles and monastries of the Middle Ages; most difficult of approach, with a far view over the surrounding country. The chateau, near the mountain hamlet of Celliers, dominates the valley of Aigueblanche. It has a superb prospect of mountain and glacier. Here the small colony was lodged. Including teachers and pupils, it numbered 150.

The venture had a delightful mixture of the quixotic and the practical. It put into practice Jean Jacques Rousseau's ideal of an education through nature. And in surroundings of sublime beauty it put them into practice at 12 to 14 francs a day. For that is the rate for youths of from 12 to 20 years—40 to 56 cents a day. To discover the best means of educating the new generation is one thing. To do it at 50 cents a day, board, lodging and teaching included, is a miracle worthy of French genius.

Recognized By Government

Almost immediately, the work was recognized by the French government as a work of public importance. It received government support.

That was seven years ago. The mountain colonies now possess centres, housing summer and winter about 2,000 youths. The most beautiful is at Avanchers. Here is built a three-storey hotel after the style of the mountain chalet, for 300 people. From the mountains behind it tumble torrents which have been caught and trapped to make the highest mountain pool in France. Several hundred feet above this is the stadium, also the highest in France. Here, in the summer, 300 youths run, swim and play. In the winter the mountain chalet becomes a ski-ing centre.

But the most significant effort of these practical visionaries is to supplant the old classical type of indoor school by the school of the mountain and the sea.

Women May Yet Govern Britain

Lady Member of House of Commons Expects to See Majority of Members Females

SYDNEY, Aust., Dec. 31:—Will Great Britain be controlled by a matriarchy—rulership by women?

The question is raised by Dr Marion Phillips, the first Australian-born woman to sit in the House of Commons, who says that possibly, there will be more women than men members of Parliament in two or three generations.

"There have been matriarchies before," she points out, "and woman may prove that they are the best for the job of government."

Interviewed, regarding her impressions of Parliament after three weeks of actual sitting in it, Dr. Phillips said that she was not prepared to define them beyond emphatically declaring that Parliament is "quite a good club—the best in Europe they say.

"I am not in favor of its becoming exclusively feminine," she continued, "because with not a man in the House it would lose its clubbable qualities and deteriorate.

"I am proud to be in a House, which, having 14 women members is unique in the Empire. Two women are in the Cabinet, and one of them, Miss Susan Lawrence, Parliamentary Secretary to the Ministry of Health, is the most brilliant debater in Parliament. There will undoubtedly be more women in later parliaments. The number of women in the House should be equal to the number of men."

Policeman—Miss, you were doing 60 miles an hour!

She—Oh, isn't that splendid! I only learnt to drive yesterday.

Man in the Moon

It's too bad to have to work on the last day of the year when there's a holiday on the first.

If everybody had brains who would be left to make money?

Backward, turn backward
Oh Time in your flight,
Make me a youth again,
Just for tonight.
Give me a horn and allow me to toot,
Give me a gun,
And allow me to shoot.

Let us be thankful that next year always smiles sweetly at us and beckons us on.

The year has been full of troubles.
With a modicum of fun;
But next year there'll be riches
And troubles, no sir, none.

American Smoke Many Cigarettes

United States Spends More on Tobacco Than on National Defence, Figures Show

NEW YORK, Dec. 31:—One hundred cigarettes yearly for every man, woman and child in the United States is the current rate of production in the American tobacco industry. A statistical examination of the industry, sponsored by Clark, Dodge & Co., indicates that the American public will pay more this year for little white rolls of shredded tobacco than for national defence. The total amount is estimated at $850,000,000 for 1929. Other authorities have estimated as high as $1,000,000,000.

Many millions of dollars have been added recently to the value of tobacco company shares. Speculative interest was revived by an announcement that wholesale cigaret prices would be put back up where they were before the recent competitive "tobacco war."

Based on figures for the past 15 years the consumption of cigarets will continue its gigantic upward swing for several years. Since 1915 the annual increase in the United States has ranged from 6.58 to 10.78 per cent, with the exception of a 10.71 per cent decline in 1920. For 10 years the rise has maintained itself at an average rate of more than 10 per cent each year. Consumption has doubled since the war. At the present rate of increase for 1929 this year will show a rise of more than 13 per cent over 1928.
