New Leader Of Liberals.

Mackenzie King is chosen leader of the Liberal party in Canada, and it is probable that the choice was the best that could be made. He has undoubted ability and plenty of self-confidence. He comes of a fighting stock, being a grandson of the rebel, Sir William Lyon Mackenzie who fought the Family Compact in Upper Canada and came near being hanged as a reward. He is a student of labor affairs and has recently published a book dealing with his investigations along that line. He was the only young man whose name was before the convention.

A number of people had hoped that Fielding would have been the choice because he had been a unionist. The convention was almost evenly divided, showing that the unionist tendency among the Liberals was strong.

Will Probably Be The Future Premier.

People realize that when the leader of the Liberal party was being chosen it was the future premier of Canada that was being chosen. The convention was representative of the whole of the party in Canada. The British Columbia delegation was headed by the Premier of the province who took a prominent part in the proceedings.

King is young enough so that even if the Liberals should be defeated at the next election, he will still be in the running and will have a chance to lead them to victory at some future time.

Ignorance Regarding Position of This Port.

The report of the sub-committee of the Canadian Economic Commission in regard to trade with Siberia, is very discouraging. It is a somewhat delayed report but it says that there is no dependable currency in Siberia and there are no cargoes for export. The result is that no medium of exchange can be arranged with that country.

The same report suggests that as soon as stable conditions return a line of steamships with Vancouver should be established for freight and passengers. It does not mention Prince Rupert.

Since the commission does not know enough about Canada to realize that the best trade route with Canada is way of Prince Rupert, it is possible that it is equally ignorant of all the conditions in Siberia and that even now trade conditions are not so bad as represented.

There is a mental anastigmatism among many officials in the east in regard to routes of trade, and for that reason it is very desirable that when appointments are made men with open minds shall be chosen. Some time ago a proposal to appoint a representative from Prince Rupert on the trade commission was ruthlessly turned down. Officialdom at Ottawa does not wish to see any good here. Apparently we have to fight for recognition for every inch of the ground is contested.

States Can do It,
Why Not Canada?

In spite of the fact that the Canadian Trade Commission says it is impossible to do business in Siberia, the United States is selling goods valued at four million dollars a month to that country. A statement of the exports from the United States to Siberia shows that for the year ending May 31, 1919, the amount sold to that country was $31,000,000 and the imports from that country for the same time was $2,000,000. For May the exports to Siberia was four millions.

If the United States can do business, surely the commissioners would not say that for Canadians it is impossible. We have to look to the future. If we wait until the United States gets established it will be useless to try to get the business. Had a Prince Rupert man gone to Siberia on the commission we venture to believe he would have seen opportunities there that he would have been able to draw to the attention of the Government.

Back to Old Time
Trade and Barter.

It might be necessary for the Government to place a business man in Vladivostok who would sell Canadian goods that are delivered to him there, getting in exchange Siberian money. With this he could purchase Siberian goods to fill the return cargoes. He would have to be a man who would be able to meet the Oriental system of bargaining. All Orientals do that. They always ask more than they expect to get and they offer less than they expect to pay. It is their habit and those doing business with them must play their own game. With the right man in charge in Vladivostok cargoes could be secured and shipped to Canada in exchange for Canadian goods and Prince Rupert would be the port through which to ship.
