The Letter Box

ADMIRAL STOREY OBJECTS Editor, Daily News:—I regret to observe in your issue of last Friday's date, that some remarks I made at Prince Rupert while addressing the Rotary Club, have been misquoted, and are, as they appear, the direct reverse of what I said, which was to the effect that "If the Lords of the Admiralty are satisfied that the agreement reached during the course of the present negotiations between Mr. Macdonald and Mr. Hoover does not endanger our security at sea, we must be content. But that if their lordships publicly state that the margin of safety will be thereby endangered, the voters of the Empire should call a halt, and insist that this margin shall not be passed."

I shall be obliged if you will kindly correct this mistake, as otherwise I appear to have been talking nonsense.

In my address I purposely did not touch on the subject of building, which is quite irrelevant to the matter on which I was speaking, namely, a brief statement on the present situation.

Believe me, Yours very truly, W. OSWALD STOREY Admiral.

BRETAGNE WAS OLD-TIME SHIP

Using Sails Except When the Wind Failed French Ship Had History

A few days ago the wires told of the wrecking of the French auxiliary schooner Bretagne and of the rescue of Captain Ozanne and crew. A day or two prior to that the vessel was off Victoria and the Victoria Times wrote of her.

Reminiscences of the days when sailing ships riding at anchor off Esquimalt were common sights, were conjured up yesterday when Dallas Road motorists and pedestrians were given the unusual thrill of seeing a large sailing schooner with towering mast off the entrance to the famous old harbor.

The schooner seen yesterday was the four-masted iron hulled auxiliary ship Bretagne on her way from Vancouver with a cargo of lumber and canned salmon to islands in the South Seas. A picturesque old craft, she was built in 1872 at Harrington, England, and christened the Ada Iredale. She was then, as she is today, a full rigged ship and for several years was employed in carrying cargo between Atlantic ports, later being used out of Boston in the China tea trade.

Lady Passengers The most unusual part about the Bretagne, although few who saw her yesterday knew it, is her crew. Thirteen native South Sea Islanders man the ship, while her skipper is Capt. L. Ozanne, a Frenchman. The first mate is the skipper's son, and travelling as passengers are the captain's wife and his pretty young daughter Leone, who makes nearly every trip with her father.

The old ship, could she talk, could tell many thrilling and astounding tales. She has been around Cape Horn more times than anyone can remember, has called at most of the shipping ports the world over, and has ridden through storms and typhoons aloft. On her trip to Vancouver recently she took 15 days from San Francisco, great seas sweeping over her and heavy gales tossing her about like the proverbial cockleshell. She is equipped with an auxiliary engine, but her skipper never uses this unless it is absolutely necessary.

Family Sails With Him. Capt. Ozanne brought his family to Papeete, capital of Tahiti, from Lorient, in Normandy, France, about 25 years ago. Ever since he has been engaged in trade between the islands, his wife and daughter accompanying him on most of his trips. Tahiti, Papeete, the Marquisas group, Apia, Suva, Fanning Island, Washington and Gilbert Islands are all ports of call for the Bretagne. Harbors are few and far between and navigation among the dangerous coral reefs calls for the greatest attention on the part of the skipper and his son. Of late years, however, the Bretagne has traded little. She picks up coبرا, carries contract labor between the islands and does a little freight business. Her main employment, however, is gathering a full cargo of copra which she carries into San Francisco every four or six months. Copra, the sun-dried meat of the cocconut is used for making soap oil and other commercial products.

Many of the South Sea Islands are French possessions. The Bretagne is of French registry, 1028 tons, according to Lloyd's registry and her home port is Tahiti. She was purchased eight years ago by Capt. Ozanne who formerly traded with the four-masted schooner Normandie, which possessed no auxiliary power.

SHOT FIRED IN FRACAS KETCHIKAN

Prohibition Officer Centre of Disturbance in Cafe at First City

Jack Fraizer is in jail on a charge of assault and battery on W. E. Miller, an employee of the prohibition bureau, says the Ketchikan Chronicle of recent date. Bill Jacobson is sought under warrant charging him with a similar crime. There's a hole in the floor of the Model Cafe where a shot was discharged from Miller's pistol. And the stories regarding the episodes which took place last night are in conflict.

Investigation by the Chronicle brings forth the following information from the witnesses and participants in the affair. Frazier, Jacobson and a woman had been eating in a back box in the restaurant. Upon conceding their meal they started out. Miller, with his wife, was sitting at the counter. Jacobson made some foul remarks about Miller as he passed and in the presence and hearing of the latter's wife and others.

Miller then stepped from the chair at which he was sitting at the counter, pulled his pistol from his pocket and made some threats. Fred Hardy, a prohibition officer, in Holland's Cigar Store next door, but adjoining by a door, hearing the trouble, rushed in. Patrolman T. Hadland, going by on the street heard disturbances and also entered. He and Handy grappled with the prohibition officer, inducing him to put the pistol back in his pocket, but not until after a shot had been fired, either intentionally or accidentally. It went through the floor and no harm was done thereby.

United States Attorney H. D. Stabler appeared on the scene and asking what the trouble was, instructed the officers to take Frazier into custody. Jacobson, in the meantime, disappeared.

ASSISTANT LIBRARIAN NECESSARY

Someone to Be Appointed For Part Time Work Until End of Year

At the regular monthly meeting of the library board held in the library last evening, it was decided to arrange as soon as possible for the appointment of a part time assistant to Miss Cruickshank, until the end of the year. President Dibb and the librarian were appointed a committee to make arrangements. The work of the library, it was pointed out, has been increasing and Miss Cruickshank has found it a tax on her strength. During the month just passed there were 3,462 volumes taken out and of this fiction, as usual, predominated with 2,220 volumes, duplicate pay, 163, non-fiction 344 and juvenile 736. The library was open 22 days and the average for the month was 157 1/4 each day.

The number of new borrowers for the month was 47 and there were 35 cards cancelled leaving a net gain of 12. There are now 2,805 registered borrowers.

During the month 31 books were received by gift and 41 by purchase, a total of 72. During the same time 28 had to be discarded as having outworn their usefulness, making a net increase in the number of books of 44, for a total of 6,886.

Two hundred volumes were ordered to be sent to Vancouver for rebinding and an order is being placed for new autumn books.

There were present Alderman Dibb, chairman Mrs. Kirkpatrick, P. Linzey (secretary), James Black, G. V. Wilkinson, H. F. Pullen and Miss Cruickshank.

EXPERIENCES OF VACATION

Described by Members of United Church Young People's Society in Brief Speeches Last Night

Interesting three-minute speeches by members describing experiences during the summer vacation period featured the weekly meeting last night of the Young People's Society of First United Church, with Duncan Miller in the chair. The meeting opened with the usual devotional period conducted by Rev. Alfred Wilson and closed with a recreational hour.

Next Monday the annual supper meeting will be held. Officers for the coming season will be elected on that occasion.

PATTULLO AT NELSON

Attacking the tariff policy of Mr. Bennett, Mr. Pattullo pointed out that the Conservative leader held up Canada as a woeful example owing to the fact that Canada was the only country which had not raised its tariff since the war. Yet, Mr. Pattullo declared, Canada has prospered more than any other country since the war.

Canada's prosperity was due to the fact that it had the largest per capita foreign trade of any country in the world, the speaker declared. If Mr. Bennett's policy were adopted, foreign trade would suffer, he said.

Raw Material

Mr. Bennett had taken issue with the export of raw materials from Canada, advocating the manufacture of raw materials at home. Mr. Pattullo said, but this was not a thing to bring about in toto and immediately. The speaker declared that a fact that was not known to everyone and was not mentioned by Mr. Bennett, was that Canada imported $70,000,000 more annually in raw materials from the United States than it exported to the States.

He pointed out that the United States was held up by Mr. Bennett as an example of a high tariff country, yet the United States exported large quantities of raw materials, chiefly raw cotton, raw tobacco and crude oil.

An analysis of Mr. Bennett's speeches on his recent tour, stated Mr. Pattullo, showed that the only place he took issue with the Liberal government was over the tariff. Everything else was apparently all right, he declared.

Mrs. Hugh Ross, president of the Ladies' Liberal Association of Nelson, presided and spoke a few words.
