"Through the ice field we litterally fought our way during two whole days and nights.

Ridiculous

"Excepting tinned pork and beans, there was no food aboard, and it was so bitterly cold that we dared not put our noses outside the cabins.

"Finally our ship became ammed in the ice within two miles of Prince Rupert, and to get out and walk seemed the only solution. So at half-past seven in the morning the enire company climbed down the ship's sides on rope ladders; and trekked across the solid ice. In order to 'land' we had to clamber up a pier about thirty feet high, hauling up our baggage as best we could."

I have lived in British Columbia for twenty years and from an intimate knowledge of the country, feel constrained to point out to you that this story is utterly ridiculous in all its details.

Within living memory-and I have checked my own knowledge from official sources-there has never been any such an occurrence as the blocking of Prince Rupert harbor by ice floes. The harbor is open the year round. Over the last ten years the mean temperature for January- the coldest month—has been 32 degrees Fehrenheit. The harbor is always entirely free from ice, nor has the mouth of the Skeena River ever been blocked so far as there are any records, or so far as memory of living persons

Finest Harbor

There is no town or settlement where an opera company could conceivably be playing anywhere within twenty-five miles of Prince Rupert-or within 250 miles for that matter. As for the alleged lack of food on what was apparently a passenger vessel and the lleged walk over two miles of "solid ice," it may be said that many years, probably the finest and most luxurious in the world; the walk over the ice one can only regard as a figment of somebody's imagination.

It seems unfortunate that such utterly untrue trash as this should be given publicity, thereby given currency to a wildly absurd picture of one of the finest Canadian harbors on the North Pa-

To serve its women readers, and particularly those who live at a distance from a retail centre, The Daily News has instituted a Shopping Service. Of course, The Daily News Shopper will attend to the man also, although he can buy a pair of braces anywhere. But not every, where can a woman get a bit of lace matched-or a piece of embroidery thread-or the thousand and one things that make up the difference between a woman's wants and a man's.

The Prince Rupert Merchants Carry between them Stocks running up to $2,000,000

None of the Prince Rupert merchants can possibly advertise everything they carry in stock, but if the thing wanted is to be got in this city, our out-of-town readers may be sure that The Daily News Shopper will get it when asked for.

If any of our women readers cannot get what they want in their nearest store, all there is to do is to write to The Daily News Shopper, stating what is required with whatever details there may be, enclosing the cost, and if it is in Prince Rupert, The Daily News Shopper makes your purchase.
