IS BRITAIN TOO EASY?

Is Great Britain too easy with foreign nations, especially with regard to war debt settlements. Britain was the first country to make a settlement with United States. She has held off from forcing a settlement with France and one of her statesmen has declared that she did not wish any money from other nations over and above the amount necessary to pay what she owes.

British labor leaders are objecting to this passive attitude on the part of their country and are talking of being more aggressive and securing a better settlement. Possibly they are right.

LIKE A PROCESSION

Life in Prince Rupert is like a procession. Changes occur so rapidly that in two or three years it is difficult to recognize the place as the same. People come and go. Every year there is a new array of clergymen, teachers, bank employees, Government employees, fishermen, businessmen. Everything is changing and doing so rapidly. A certain amount of change is good for any place, but it seems as if it is overdone in Prince Rupert. The expectations of the people who came are too great and they could not be realized.

WONDERFUL PROGRESS

While there are constant changes going on in the city, wonderful progress is being made in beautifying the residential section by the making of lawns and gardens. This gives an air of permanence which the changes mentioned above seem to belie. People are making permanent homes for themselves and settling down to making their places beautiful. A large proportion of the people own their homes and that adds to the stability of the place. Today on some streets there will be a dozen nice gardens where last year there were only two.

Conditions such as those mentioned make life much more attractive here than it formerly was. So attractive has it become that we find a few people who are not working making this place their home. Some come in for the winter from outside points instead of going south. On every hand there is a tendency toward permanency. What is needed is to try to make the roving occupations more permanent, to get men and women in the offices, the stores and the schools who will stay here, making this their home town.

ENCOURAGE PERMANENCE

Various factors make for permanence in a city. If life is made attractive, the people like to remain. Good roads, sidewalks, gardens, playgrounds, schools, reading rooms and libraries are among these. Most of these Prince Rupert has. Her library in particular caters to a need in the city, making pleasant the long winter evenings and encouraging the people to stay by providing them with the very latest books without any direct cost to themselves.

A crying need today is a gymnasium. Young people find it difficult to employ their evenings and to keep themselves fit during the winter. In the summer they have the salt lake in which to swim, the harbor on which to row or paddle and hunting and fishing as amusements. In the winter there is little other than badminton and basketball. Many do not care for these sports and the result is they become unfit for their work. We have talked about a big public gymnasium for ten years, but have made no determined effort to secure it. Possibly this year. But shall we find a leader to handle the situation? It's a community job, but must be handled by one man.

Rich Nourishment that suits the "Candy" Tooth

HERE IS WELCOME NEWS for mothers who fear their children are too fond of sweets. Let them have Quaker Puffed Wheat. It satisfies the candy craving, but has all the wholesomeness of whole wheat.

Millions of food cells in each grain are exploded when the wheat is puffed. The rich food stores of the grain are released for easy and complete assimilation. The wheat bran is all there, but so concealed you would not notice it.

The flavour is that of roasted nut-meats. It satisfies when appetites need tempting because they lag. Give it to the children freely at any time during the day.

At breakfast or any other meal, Quaker Puffed Wheat is a delicious cereal dish. Serve with fruits or just milk or cream.

Puffed Rice is Good, Too

Quaker Puffed Rice is puffed like Puffed Wheat. The food cells are exploded and broken down. Puffed Rice is another delicious dainty, with the texture and taste of toasted nut meats and full of the ready energy of fine white rice. For variety, keep both kinds in the house.
