CANADA SHOULD BE PROUD OF HER NAVY, DECLARES COMMANDER MURRAY OF THE ESQUIMALT STATION IN ADDRESS.

Western Outlet Very Important

(Financial News)
 We know that when the Canadian business men visited the Peace River country under the auspices of the Canadian Chamber of Commerce, they returned to Calgary and voted in favor of branch lines for the Peace River country AND a direct outlet to the Pacific Coast forthwith. They considered the direct outlet of parallel importance and urgency with the development of a branch line system.

Mr. and Mrs. H. W. Bullivant and daughter of Sydney, Australia, passed through the city last evening from train to boat. They have been on a trip to England and will embark from Vancouver to Australia. By the time they reach home they will have circled the globe.

P. W. Bates, travelling passenger agent for the White Star Line in Vancouver, disembarked here last evening from the Prince Rupert after having made the trip north from Vancouver and around to Anyox and Stewart and left on this morning's train for the east.

did since the scrapping of the training college in this country, they were treated with every respect and many given good positions. Two Canadians were commanders of destroyers in the royal navy. Two had been on the battle cruiser Tiger, one as navigating officer and the other as torpedo officer. One was an officer on the Durban. On two occasions Canadians led the list in officers' examinations, two took seconds and one third. An equally good record was made by the men as by the officers.

Speaking of the two new destroyers which were being built for Canada, one of which was to be named the Skeena, Commander Murray said they were the very latest thing, equal to any that were being built. Destroyers had to be small, owing to the peculiar work they did, but the Canadian vessels would have a little more beam to enable them to combat the ice conditions on the east coast in winter. Also, they had to be heated and shower baths were provided, which the British admiralty did not think necessary in their vessels.

The two destroyers Vancouver and Champlain, now in service were not to be laughed at. The Vancouver, now in port, when she was the Tormentor in the British navy, was the fastest in the world.

In conclusion, Commander Murray urged the people to take an interest in the navy, and it was up to the people to decide what they wanted. They could be a great assistance to the government in an advisory capacity.

With Commander Murray at the luncheon yesterday was Lieutenant Wood of the Vancouver and Lieutenant Haworth of the local naval reserve.

President George Bryant thanked the speaker, on behalf of the club, for his address.

CRANBERRIES FROM MASSETT

New Industry Being Started There Which Promises to Develop

The Daily News has received from C. Kirmis of Massett, a sample box of cranberries grown on his farm this year. The berries are very large and would seem to indicate that the locality is an ideal one for their culture. Mr. Kirmis says that while this year they will supply only the local demand for the berries, he hopes next year to have sufficient to commence an export business. It is a new crop in a new territory and many obstacles have had to be overcome in getting started. Now, however, he feels it is likely to develop into an industry of importance.

Mr. Kirmis encloses a picture of the plot from which the berries were taken and it certainly looks well.

Let us cheer Connie Mack's Philadelphia Athletics for winning the first two games of the World Series on foreign ground. Let us also commiserate with the Chicago Cubs in their loss for there is no gainsaying the fact that they might just as well have won one or both of those two games instead of losing all. When one team exceeds another in hitting in two games and loses both, that is our idea of bad luck. But, on the other hand, it must be admitted that the A's outgeneraled the Bruins on both occasions for it is good management when a team, though virtually outthit in two games, wins both games.

Nevertheless, the Mackmen have staged a great surprise in winning both Chicago games and start at home today with the series, in the estimation of most observers, a virtual cinch. The big preponderance of dopesters will tell you now that to take the next two winning games will be but a matter of form for the Athletics. Indeed, it would appear quite probable up to today that Philadelphia will take the four straight and end the series before the Quaker Sunday. Anyway the next two games are at home for them and the third if necessary.

If it is going to turn in new records in some respects, the 1929 World Series is at least not going to constitute a financial record, it seems certain now, although at the start there was reason to believe that it might. On the basis of $200,000 per game, it looked before that it might be another million dollar party if the battle went as far as five games. Six games might have topped the previous high record gate of $1,207,864, set by the Yankees and Cardinals in 1926. But prospects now are that it may not go five games, most certainly not six and much less seven.

The present baseball series reopened the rivalry between Philadelphia and Chicago of 19 years ago and prospects are that the 1929 outcome may be much the same as that of 1910—only worse as far as the Cubs are concerned. That year the proud Bruins of Frank Chance's era were heavy favorites, only to be beaten in a five game series. It would seem that Joe McCarthy's Cubs not so proud as then, are to meet even with worse fate. History bids fair to repeat itself to make a Philadelphia holiday and the Athletics another wonder team of the age. That's the way it looks today, at least.

Around The World With Sport Fans

(By The Tramp)
 Mayor Thompson did not go half far enough in his anti-British campaign in Chicago. Had it not been for English the Chicago Cubs might have won the first two baseball games.

Few, if any, men in the non-champion class have been able to make of boxing the source of revenue that Jack Sharkey, Boston Lithuanian with the Irish ring name, has during the past three years. The figures show that Sharkey, in his last 10 bouts, has drawn a total of $2,606,365, or an average of over $260,000 a bout. Sometimes the former tar has been cheered, but more often jeered, yet he has gone on collecting the dollars in ever-increasing amounts. It is estimated that his share of the above amount totals $600,000.
