Great Gathering Yesterday to Pay Last Respects To Memory of One of Prince Rupert's Pioneer Citizens

Seldom, if ever, has there been an expression from the people of Prince Rupert to equal that given yesterday for the late F. G. Dawson in the funeral service held at First Presbyterian Church, Rev. Dr. Dafoe officiating. The church was packed to the doors and chairs were placed in the aisles. In addition to that, large numbers found it impossible to gain admission and went away or remained outside to greet the cortege as it proceeded on its mournful procession to the cemetery. Besides that, all along the route were people who were unable to attend, but who wished to join with the others in the expression of regret.

The church of the church was banked with flowers, wreaths, baskets and sprays, and in front of the pulpit was a large cross. While most of these were from the home people, a great many had been sent from far away places, indicating the widespread influence of Mr. Dawson and his ability to make friends wherever he went.

The mayor and aldermen and other city officials occupied front seats in the church and close behind them were the employees and former employees of the firm, as well as the officials of W. H. Malkin Co. Men and women from all walks of life were there and especially notable was the large number of men and women from the more lowly callings, all of whom were eager to pay their last respects to the man whom they had been proud to know in life. B. C. Keeley, Pacific coast manager of the C. N. Steamships, represented Sir Henry Thornton, and other railway officials included R. Creelman, G. A. McNicholl, J. M. McRae and W. H. Tobey.

The singing was led by a male choir made up of men from various choirs in the city, the hymns being "O God Our Help in Ages Past" and "Lead, Kindly Light." John Davey sang, "Just For Today," accompanied by W. Vaughan Davies and Mr. Davey was organist for the hymns.

In his address to the congregation, Dr. Dafoe spoke of the many admirable qualities of Mr. Dawson and of the loss his death would be to the city and country. There was also a brief service at Fairview cemetery, over forty cars conveying the mourners there. Pallbearers were Mayor McMorris, Fred Stork, M. P. McCaffery, J. H. Pillsbury, C. H. Orme, W. H. Tobey, D. G. Stewart and George W. Nickerson.

However, there was little activity this year in the matter of getting names on the list. Yesterday there was quite a rush of declarations, about 100 persons having registered during the day. ## Manager of W. H. Malkin Co., Ltd., Is Enthusiastic Over Future of Prince Rupert and Development of District

"The prospects for the future development of Prince Rupert look brighter to us today than did the future of Vancouver at the time W. H. Malkin opened his business there," declared H. W. Taylor, general manager of W. H. Malkin Co., Ltd., who has been in the city a few days in connection with the taking over of the wholesale business of F. G. Dawson Co., Ltd. Mr. Taylor spoke most optimistically. The very fact that the firm he represented had invested a large sum of money in the business here was sufficient indication of their view.

The Malkin business was opened in April, 1895. At that time the available business for a wholesale firm in that city was not as great as is the available business in Prince Rupert today, Mr. Taylor said. Few people realized that the fishing industry is centred in Prince Rupert and he looked to see big developments as a result of the new process of freezing. This, he considered, would mean a lot to the industry. In the hinterland farming prospects were good. Terrace produced fruit and vegetables of the finest, Bulkley Valley was devoted largely to the cattle industry and the Vanderhoof plains to mixed farming.

Mr. Taylor spoke enthusiastically of the possibilities in the development of shipping out of the port of Prince Rupert and the advantage it would be to the city.

The possibilities of capitalizing the sport attractions such as big game hunting and trout fishing were mentioned. With increased hotel accommodation the big game hunting and trout fishing might be advised with good effect. The mining prospects, Mr. Taylor thought, looked better than ever, both in the Portland Canal district and in the interior right through to Prince George and north to the Inghenka, all of which was tributary to Prince Rupert. The power development on the coast, he considered, would have a great effect on this industry.

Mr. Taylor said he thought people in Prince Rupert hardly realized the possibilities in the development of the surrounding country. All the principals in the Malkin business were very optimistic in regard to it and he was sure Prince Rupert would develop with the district.

Speaking feelingly of the late Mr. Dawson, Mr. Taylor said he had been known to all the principals of the firm for the past 22 years and he was highly respected by them all. They had watched his business grow on sound foundations and with the increased buying power of the new firm, he felt they would be able to serve the people of the district even better.

In concluding, Mr. Taylor said he felt safe in saying that the principals of W. H. Malkin Co., Ltd., were full of optimism as to the future of Prince Rupert and they hoped to see the same development take place in the next 25 years as had taken place in Vancouver during the past 25 years.
