"KIT CARSON" IS FILM EPIC

Fred Thompson Does Two Chapters In Life Book of Scout

Spectacular backgrounds, mass movements of whites and Indians, struggles between trappers and the red men, with Fred Thompson and his white horse Silver King, at their best, combine to make "Kit Carson" one of the outstanding pictures of the season. Carson's life was a series of thrills and Mr. Thompson has skillfully chosen many of them in building up a remarkably dramatic story for his Paramount special which opens tonight at the Capitol Theatre.

The film version of the two romantic episodes in the life of this country's famous Indian scout and military leader is authentically done, the intensive research work undergone by Mr. Thompson in setting it to the screen, being manifested realistically. It compares favorably with any of the big western specials produced by any film company in recent years. It's a Paramount picture.

Imeprial Oil Co.'s tanker Albertolte, Capt. Mountain, sailed at 1 o'clock this morning on her return south after having discharged a full cargo of fuel oil for the company's local tanks.
