EXPERIMENT IN LOGGING

Forest Branch calling For Tenders on Large Cut at Alexa Lake Reserve

In connection with experimental work to determine the best method of logging, the cost of operatioin and the best policy to be adopted in the disposal of slash, the provincial forest branch is calling for tenders for one million feet of spruce and balsam logs, which it proposes to cut and deck in the Aleza Lake forest reserve, near Prince George.

Logging experiments have previously been carried out in the Aleza Lake reserve, but there has been trouble experienced in the disposal of logs. This year the men in charge of the experiment will seek to avoid this by calling for tenders for the purchase of the logs when they have been decked. In addition to the cutting of the logs, the forest branch will prepare roads over which the logs may be hauled to Aleza Lake, the expectation being that the logs will be available on or before January 1. An upset price of $8 has been placed on the

There are about ten sections in the Aleza Lake reserve which are held for experimental purposes in connection with logging and reforestation. The operations will be in charge of officials of the research office of the department and log- Remo Farmers ging will be under the supervision of Ray Sanson, ranger in charge of the station.
