said, equitable methods of catching fish should be provided for. Instead of that, United States traps would continue to deplete the salmon and United States vessels, having exhausted their own supply, would encroach nearer and nearer on the Canadian supply of fish. By using seines and nets, Canada gave the fish a chance. On the other hand, intensive fishing of United States traps depleted

Brady declared, "let it be a treaty RADIO BICYCLES of proof that the United States government is really anxious to FURNITURE REPAIRS, PACKING preserve the fish by eliminating these traps and accepting equal methods of fishing."

Exception had been taken to the treaty because an area of Canadian waters sixty miles long off and above the Fraser River was made treaty waters. He contended that sixty miles south of Point Roberts in United States should likewise be made treaty water. If such inequalities were eliminated, present, there were a number of such things which he could not allow to stand. The B.C. Conservative members had taken the stand they did in order that the treaty might be given mature consideration and parts removed that were a menace to Canadian fishermen. Mr. Brady also contended that the treaty should not be of sixteen years' steelbound duration but of shorter duration. Conservatives' Stand

Accounting for why the Conservative government of British Commencing at a post planted at Columbia should be in favor of high water mark, and at the shore the treaty, Mr. Brady said that he corner of Main Street, and the corner of Block 20 Town of Massett, B.C.; could imagine with what enthus- thence South Westerly about three iasm Mr. Babcock would present hundred feet to low water mark; thence it to the government saying that in a North Westerly direction to New ing the arguments for the treaty about three hundred feet more or less presented by Hon.
