TRANSPORTATION PROBLEM

The Financial Post of Toronto suggests that the Peace River western outlet has taken the place of the Hudson Bay Railway as the major steam transportation problem. That is true, but there is a decided difference between the two. While the Hudson Bay line passes through a great deal of country that is unproductive and useless except for the mines, the western outlet of the Peace River, if properly located, opens up an entirely new rich agricultural and timber country that makes it equal in value to the branch lines which the Post advocates, and by reducing the cost of rail transportation to the farmer it benefits the whole Peace River district.

Several hundred businessmen of the Dominion visited the Peace area recently and at the close of their investigations unanimously urged the building of a western outlet as well as the provision of branch lines. The resolution was submitted by the Edmonton board and endorsed by delegates from Prince Rupert to Halifax.

COAL FOR EASTERN CANADA

It is proposed to buy coal from Great Britain for eastern Canada. We have no particular objection to this except that Canada has a great deal of undeveloped coal, much of which might be marketed at home. If the anthracite coal of the Groundhog were developed and routed through to the east by way of the Panama canal it would probably find a ready market in the east and would to some extent replace U.S. anthracite. Also we are told there is another very high-grade coal deposit in the Peace River country which might be used for a similar purpose.

We do not think Alberta can ever expect to market her low-grade coal in Ontario, but the very high-grade commodity like that of the Groundhog and the upper Peace could well be carried that far with a reasonable expectation of competing.

Tells About Deal For Vancouver Star, but Says Still Interested

(Vancouver Star)

It is with more than ordinary regret that I announce today a change in the control of the Vancouver Star. For over five years I have had it under my personal direction and during that period I have striven to so build and strengthen it as to make it one of the outstanding morning papers of the Dominion. I have not accomplished all that was in my heart, but that I have made considerable progress along the chosen lines I feel satisfied.

With its next issue, the Star will make its appearance under the direction of George M. Bell, owner and publisher of the Calgary Albertan. Mr. Bell, who is a successful western Canada newspaperman of many years' standing, is not relinquishing any of his present connections. On the contrary, acting along the lines of carefully matured plans aiming at the expansion of his journalistic enterprises, he is merely adding to his other interests the control of the Vancouver Star.

My friends will be certain to ask me why I am making this change. The answer is a simple one. It would be easy for me to say that my varied business activities have assumed such large proportions as to demand my whole time and attention. But if I did, I would not be telling the whole truth. The simple and primary fact is that Mr. Bell, who was determined to enter the British Columbia field, extended me an offer which I could not refuse. Acceptance was made easier by the fact that Mr. Bell assured me of his intention, should he receive control, to continue the Star along its present lines. It will remain independent in politics and will continue to recognize its responsibility to the public as a purveyor of reliable information.

Changes in the Star will appear but gradually. Mr. Bell proposes to add new machinery and equipment, but he will retain the services of the present editorial, mechanical and business staffs. This will ensure continuity in style and spirit.

My own success with the paper has been considerable. Since I acquired it the Star has steadily expanded and improved. It is true, as I have said, that I have not achieved all I planned, for my ambitions were high; but marked progress has been recorded. Today the cost of publication is more than double what it was a little over two years ago, and the revenue has grown even more rapidly than has the expense. These two facts tell the whole story.

To my father, who has stood behind me, and to those who have supported me so loyally, as members of the producing staffs, as subscribers, and as advertisers, I am deeply grateful. Without their consistent help the Star would not have been a possibility. I sincerely trust that they will give to Mr. Bell just as generous treatment as they have given me. I myself will take a keen interest in the progress made by Mr. Bell and will be proud of any success which may attend his efforts.

Incidentally, I remain very heavily interested in the Vancouver newspaper field. That I may return to it is a possibility. If so, it will be in cooperation with Mr. Bell and not as a competitor of his.

Vancouver has three first-class newspapers — newspapers which rank with the best published in Canada. They all have their peculiarities; but they are all very much alive and each plays the role it has assumed with consummate art. It has been a pleasure to have been associated with the Province and The Sun. Quitting the company of my colleagues gives me deep regret; but, while daily contacts may be less frequent, I am sure that friendships will endure.

Craze For Dancing Gives Away To Skating Old Land

Believing that the craze for dancing as a form of entertainment has passed, the management of the Locarno Dance Salon, Sauchiehall Street, Glasgow, have decided to convert their large ballroom into a roller skating rink. Immediately the "Fair" holidays are over the change will take place. The scheme of reconstruction does not involve much alteration to the existing building. Opened during Christmas week, 1928, the ballroom has been regarded as one of the finest of its kind in Britain, and among the distinguished visitors who have danced there are H.R.H. the Prince of Wales and Prince George.
