Moonshine Seized and Operator Arrested at Hidden Bay, Alaska

KETCHIKAN, April 29.—In a lone-handed raid, Fred Handy, prohibition officer, surprised Charlie Fraser distilling liquor at a large moonshine outfit in the woods at the head of Hidden Bay on Prince of Wales Island. He arrested Fraser, seized a quantity of moonshine and burned two buildings to the ground.

Chartering a private boat, Handy went to Hidden Bay. When he arrived at the scene of operations, Fraser was inside a two-story building with the distillery running full-blast. Handy waited until Fraser had finished the "run" and when he stepped outside the still house, placed him under arrest.

The still had a capacity of 150 gallons of mash and, when tested by Handy, was capable of turning out one gallon of moonshine in six minutes. There were 245 gallons of finished moonshine and a great quantity of mash, all of which were destroyed except two kegs of liquor brought back with the still for evidence.

Monoplane Carrying Parker Cramer May be Lost in the Wilds of Yukon Territory

The Cessana monoplane, piloted by Parker Cramer, trans-Atlantic flyer, on its way back to Chicago after a flight to Nome, is believed lost today in the wilderness of Yukon Territory east of Big Salmon, 125 miles north of White Horse, according to the Government Telegraphs. At 11 a.m. the plane passed over Big Salmon headed east, whereas it should have been taking a more southerly direction. The belief is that Cramer may have mistaken Big Salmon for Yukon Crossing and thus lost his bearings. At 1 p.m. there had been no report at White Horse of the plane since it passed Big Salmon at 11 a.m. The machine was to have landed at White Horse for fuel.

If a mistake has really been made, as is now believed, the ship might be completely lost in a barren wilderness devoid of communication with the outside and with few human habitations. Should it be necessary to make a forced landing, the plane may not be heard from for days, and, possibly, weeks. The only chance is that the aviators find their mistake while they still have enough fuel left to get back on their course.

The plane could not get away from Fairbanks on Saturday owing to the soft muddy field. The take-off was made this morning and at 10:30 a.m. the ship passed Carmacks.

EVIDENTLY MURDER AND SUICIDE SATURDAY AT ST. REGIS HOTEL VANCOUVER. WHEN MAN AND WOMAN FOUND DEAD IN ROOM YESTERDAY

VANCOUVER, April 29.—Premonition told Steve Lafe, East Georgia Street, on Saturday that his missing wife, Margaret, aged 24, had met with foul play and this was verified late Sunday afternoon when her body and that of Frank Martino, aged 30, with bullets through their hearts were found in Martino's room at the St. Regis hotel here.

The police say that it is a case of murder and suicide. Martino killing the woman and then himself.

Martino, according to a story told the police by Lafe, when he reported her absence on Saturday, had persistently endeavored to get her to join him as a dancing partner for professional engagements, but he, Lafe, refused to consent. On Saturday afternoon Mrs. Lafe left home to go shopping and failed to return.

Martino was a waiter.
