Claus Berg of Porcher Island Died Saturday

The death occurred in the Prince Rupert General Hospital on Saturday evening of Claus Berg of Porcher Island, who had been a patient in the institution since last August.

Deceased was 69 years of age and a native of Sweden. As far as can be learned, he had no relatives in this country, although he is said to have been a member of the Swedish royal family. In the old country he was a telegraph operator.

Funeral arrangements are in the hands of the B. C. Undertakers.

NEW YEAR SERVICES

Special Occasion Observed In Most of City Churches Yesterday

New Year sermons were preached by the pastors in most of the city churches yesterday. In some cases there was special music. Large congregations were in attendance.

In First Baptist Church the subject of the pastor, Rev. Dr. F. W. Dafoe, in the morning was "God's Care For His Own" and, in the evening, "Our New Year Motto." Features of both services were vocal solos by Melvin R. Dafoe of Vancouver, son of Dr. Dafoe. In the morning he sang "Father in Heaven" and in the evening, "Teach Me to Pray."

In First United Church, Rev. Alfred Wilson, the pastor, delivered appropriate sermons. By special request, choruses from the cantata, "The Promised Child," were given by the senior choir in the evening.

Rev. Thomas McConnell, in First Presbyterian Church, also gave special New Year sermons. The anthems, "Oh, Zion That Bringest," "The First Christmas Morn" and "There Were Shepherds," were sung by the choir in the evening.

In the morning at the Salvation Army Citadel, Adjutant William Kerr took charge and in the evening Captain Warren. At the latter meeting, Sergeant Major Andrew Martin spoke, in addition to Captain Warren. There was a vocal duet, "The Old Rugged Cross," by Mrs. William Kerr and Captain Warren.

In St. Andrew's Anglican Cathedral, where Very Rev. J. B. Gibson officiated, there was Christmas music in the morning. In the evening there was a special service for members of the Masonic Lodges, who paraded to church.

There will be special watch night services in a number of the churches tomorrow evening.

BILL THE DIVER DIED SUNDAY

Late William Schelin Well-Known Figure on Local Waterfront

William Schelin, better known as "Bill the Diver," and for many years a well known figure along the local waterfront, died last night in the Prince Rupert General Hospital, where he had been a patient for several weeks. He had been in failing health for some time and had been a patient in the hospital off and on for several months before his final admission.

The late Mr. Schelin was 66 years of age and a native of England. He was formerly the owner of the well known boat Kelpie. At various times he followed the occupation of fisherman and diver.

Prince of Wales Knitting Scarves

LONDON, Dec. 30:—People about the Court were not nearly so surprised as were the general public to learn that the Prince of Wales had sent scarves of his own making for the Queen's personal collection of garments to be distributed by her Majesty's needlework guild.

The 'Daily News' learns that the Prince and Prince George undertook the knitting together to please their mother. They shared the wool and there was keen competition while they were working on the scarves in the country, not only to see who could finish first, but who dropped fewest stitches and made fewest mistakes. If there were mistakes they must have been rectified, for the scarves show no signs of them.

One scarf is crocheted, in a simple treble stitch and while the red scarf which the Prince has knitted is done in a perfectly plain garter stitch the blue one must have taken much longer, for it is in stocking stitch and is exceptionally neat.

Many Attended Reception Mr. And Mrs. Bushby

A reception was held yesterday afternoon by Mr. and Mrs. George Bushby at their Borden Street home which was largely attended, something like one hundred and twenty-five persons being present.

Tea was served in the dining room. Mrs. J. C.. McLennan and Mrs. McMordie pouring, while serving were Mrs. Arthur H. Carson, Mrs. Elfert, Miss Joan West and Miss Margaret Palmer. The simple but artistic decorations were in green, while colored lights in the rooms and outside gave a festive appearance.

EARLY LIFE FAR NORTH

Belief That People Migrated From Asia to America Supported

WASHINGTON, D.C., Dec. 30: The key to American prehistory lies not in Alaska but in Asia, in the belief of Dr. Ales Hrdlicka, Smithsonian anthropologist. His contention supports a previous view that Monogoloid migration across Bering Strait was so easy it was inevitable, contrasting with a prevailing opinion that the Eskimo had a purely American origin.

Scant hope of uncovering even dim records of the far past in central Alaska is seen by the noted scientist, who traversed the Yukon River from source to mouth during the summer in search of archaic lore.

"Unless some most unfortunate accident occurs," he said, "we shall never be able to find real ancient remains in the Yukon valley or delta, because the country has been remade by sea and river. Remains have been swept away by the water as it gnaws at the banks, or lie covered up in deep jungles or tundras.

"Indirectly, however, through archaeological and other evidence, substantial steps have been made this year towards the solution of the problem of the origin of the Eskimo and his relation to the Indian."

Collected Much

The anthropologist returned with more than 60 boxes of material, one of the most striking parts of the collection being nearly 800 tools and objects in fossil ivory, belonging to a wonderfully rich and artistic old culture, discovered but a few years ago. Light also may be thrown on the past by a double burial in a stone-lined grave, the oldest uncovered so far along the Yukon, and similar in type to some in Northeastern Asia.

"Our material," Dr. Hrdlicka said, " is rich, but only careful study will show how important. The main achievement was to save for science much that would soon have been lost for all time.

"Smithsonian expeditions, while saving precious material and data from the American side of Bering Sea, make more urgent an extension of the work in Northeastern Asia. It is there, it is felt even more strongly, that the material and information lie that will clinch indications obtained on the American side."

More than 3,000 miles were traveled on the great river, famous from the days of the gold rush. The scientist, assisted by Dr. J. Maly, of the Univeristy of Prague, criss-crossed from bank to bank in search of ancient sites, more than 1,500 miles being covered in an open 18-foot canoe. A large majority of the surviving full-blood Indians and Eskimos, melting before civilization even as the relics of their ancestors are being destroyed by nature, were measured, observed and photographed.

"Essential records of this vanishing population," Dr. Hrdlicka said, "thus are safe."
