Always!—in the pocket of my car

When you are driving a car these days-it's a question of eyes front!" said a friend of mine recently. "That's why I smoke cigars when driving. You light up and smoke. I like a pipe and I smoke cigarettes too-but these take more attention than a cigar. I buy a pocket pack of 5 Marguerites-foil wrapped, factory-fresh-I drop it in the pocket of my car. I always have a cigar handy and do you know," he concluded, "the old bus seems to run smoother when you're smoking a Marguerite."

Famous Star of the Screen at Her Best, in Her Best Picture, "The Woman Disputed"

Unexcelled acting, a sweeping story of love, intrigue and sacrifice, climatic production and perfect direction combine to make "The Woman Disputed," Norma Talmadge's newest screen vehicle, entertainment-plus.

This great picture, which opens at the Capitol tonight, not only lends itself perfectly to the magnificently dramatic genius of the star, but it provides her and her large cast of players with a spectacular vehicle which holds the audience's attention from the first flash to the final fade-out. After essaying tom-boyish roles, be-jeweled characterizations and flashing-eyed dance-hallish types during the past couple of years, Norma returns, in "The Woman Disputed," to the kind of picture in which she is at her very best.

The story revolves around a triangle of two men and a girl. The men are fast friends-the Peterson, for Anyox; S. Briggs, Brunswick, has been chosen to girl likes them both-until jealousy and hatred drive the trio into a strange denouement and a Development of the absorbing plot against a background of war-ravaged towns, espionage and adventure gives the girl the choice of saving an entire army corps from destruction or sacrificing her honor in the name of patriotism.

"The Women Disputed" must be ranked as one of the screen's utstanding , year's offerings.
