BRITISH TAKE RYDER CUP FROM UNITED STATES

Walter Hagen (left), captain of the United States Ryder Cup golf team, is here seen giving Major J. H. Batley, secretary of the British Gold Association, a chance to see what the Ryder Cup looked like. He was confident that his team would take it back with them, but the British golfers led by Duncan turned the tables on the visiting team and gave them one of the worst beatings they ever experienced. Needless to say the Ryder Cup will reside in the British Isles for the next two years and Hagen goes home empty handed.
