Sport Briefs

The Secretary of the Navy, officers and sailors of the Pacific Fleet were treated recently to one of the greatest Wild West shows ever held in Los Angeles, through the tireless efforts of Douglas Fairbanks who worked day and night for a week getting together the greatest aggregation of riders ever assembled in one arena.

An interesting feature of the baseball game the other evening was the way the Tiny Tims could steal bases. No sooner was the pitcher in his box than they would start tearing down to third for all they could go.

Jack Dempsey, heavyweight champion pugilist, will meet Willie Meehan in an eight-round bout in the east in the month of November. This statement was recently issued by Meehan who has received the promise of Kearns, the manager for Dempsey, in the fighting circle.

Eugene T. Bolton, representing the Great Lakes Naval Training School at Chicago, won the ten-mile national championship swim at Riverton, New Jersey, a few days ago.

On Wednesday evening the Tiny Tims were so pleased with themselves at the success of their ball game that they did not stop to take all their bats. There were only two men down when Teddy Tite brought in the winning run and Sam Hibbard was safe on first.

For the past few evening swimming has not been over popular at the Salt Lake, but last night the bright sunshine took many of the water lovers across the bay. Conveniences are now so much a matter of course over there that the old timers are beginning to forget about having to climb into the lake over the rough trail which followed the inlet.
