Sport Chat

The big question of whether the New York Yankees will batter their way to another pennant and pot of world series dough next October is the ever present question of the ability of Babe Ruth's slender underpins to stand up under another campaign of 154 games. The Babe's legs were in bad shape the last two months of the 1928 race and he barely staggered into the world series on them. Whether a winter's rest and lots of golf this spring has restored them sufficiently to last another six months is a question.

Many believe that Ruth will not play over 100 games this year. This is all conjecture, however, as the Babe says that his legs are in good shape and he expects them to support him in the style he has been accustomed to for five more years in the majors. And when he leaves the American League his ambition is to play five years in the National League with the Chicago Cubs to take advantage of the short right field fence.

What to do With the $100,000,000 on Hand is Being Discussed

WASHINGTON, D.C., April 3: -Authorities here are discussing what to do with the $100,-000,000 surplus which the treasury has on hand. A considerable part is likely to go toward reducing the war debt. It is prophesied that there will be no tax revision as asked by a section of the people. It is pointed out that the surplus was largely due to taxation of the profits on rising stock market but that prices which go up also come down. Increased appropriations during the present year will take OVERCHARGE care of a large part of the money.
