ACME STORE IS BUSY PLACE

Premier Outfitting Store for Men and Boys Doing a Great Business at Their Backward Season Sale

With the store thronged from morn until eve, The Acme Importers is a busy place these days. With their old customers bringing their friends day by day, the clientele of The Acme has increased greatly during this Backward Season Sale which is now at its height.

The quality and value of their goods, together with the sale prices—which are real sale prices—and The Acme service is a combination which is hard to beat anywhere. And these are being duly appreciated in Prince Rupert by discerning purchasers.

You would be well advised to pay a visit to The Acme before long to make purchase of your requirements, so that you may have a full choice before stocks get too much broken. For judging by the manner in which parcels are leaving The Acme, this Backward Season Sale will not have very much longer to run—it will have accomplished its purpose.

So, while sale prices are still on, drop in and see what you require, being assured that you will get value and quality for your money. (Adv't.)

The display of the work done in the home economics and manual training centres by the pupils of the high school and Booth Memorial and Borden Street schools attracted a large number of parents and friends of the pupils to the Booth Memorial school yesterday afternoon. The Parent-Teacher Association at the same time held a sale of home cooking and ice cream and as a result the funds of the association were increased considerably.

The display of clothing made by the girls was of outstanding quality and variety. On all sides was heard the highest praise of the excellence of workmanship, finish and design. Prizes were awarded to the following, who led in their respective grades:

Grade VI.—Eleanor Sievert, Booth Memorial school. Kazu Nisicho of Booth school was highly commended.

Grade VII.—Isabel Fidler, Borden St. school.

Grade VIII.—Gunborg Pearson, Booth Memorial school; Betty Eastman, Booth Memorial school.

Grade IX.—Muriel Vance, high school.

Grade X.—Helen Stamp-Vincent, high school.

A feature of the afternoon was the parade of the girls wearing the prize-winning costumes. Eleanor Sievert also displayed a doll, dressed in Italian costume, for which she won a prize at the Vancouver Good-Will Day recently. Tea was served by Grade IX, pupils in the lunch room which had been most effectively decorated for the occasion. Muriel Vance was responsible for the decorative scheme which was the subject of much commendation.

The display of manual training work was also of a very high standard. The radio cabinet by William Fuller, a table by Bill Elkins and tray by Jim Winslow attracted more than passing attention.

Prizes were distributed by Mrs. R. M. Winslow, president of the Parent-Teacher Association. Mrs. Dalby was cashier. Mrs. Eastman and Mrs. Vierrick were in charge of home cooking. Mrs. George Hill and Mrs. Thurber in charge of the sale of ice cream.

The general trend of conversation was on the uniformly high grade of workmanship and the utility of this branch of education. Miss Rogers, Miss Peto and Mr. Gee are to be complimented on the excellent results obtained.
