AIR CIRCUS GRIPPING FILM

Audience Kept Guessing Right Until the End With Many Incidental Escapades

"The Air Circus" is a picture that grips one's interest with the opening scene and never releases it. This one, unlike many plots, is unfolded in such a manner as to keep one guessing right down to the final fadeout. David Rollins, around whom the major portion of the story revolves, captivates with his boyish wholesomeness, and exceptional handling of this opus by Howard Hawks and Lew Seiler, the directors, keeps Rollin's victory over fear of the air encountering so many obstacles that it seems doubtful, until the last few minutes of the picture, whether it will be victory or failure.

Sue Carol does admirable work as the sister of the aviation school owner, played by Charles Delaney. Sue is an air instructor and it falls to her lot to teach Rollins and his pal, Arthur Lake, how to fly a plane. Young Lake takes to flying like a duck to water, but Rollins, who, theoretically should excel Lake because Rolin's brother scored success as an overseas ace, develops fear in the air, which is accentuated when Rollins cracks up in two attempts to handle a plane in the air. Delaney, the owner of the school, and his sister who helps him, both are anxious that Rollins give a creditable performance as a flyer, but their hopes seem destined to go unrealized.

The final scene is unexpected and thrilling.

BIG SHOW AT THE CAPITOL

Week-end Program Includes Two Feature Pictures, "Tarzan" and One Act Vaudeville

A unusually big show has been arranged for Capitol patrons this week-end, with an exceptionally fine program of pictures including Geo. O'Brien and Lois Moran in an immensely colorful and entertaining film "Sharpshooters," also the well known favorite Madge Bellamy in "The Play Girl," a clever and delightful photoplay in which laughter and romance lead the way.

Then there is the fourth chapter of "Tarzan, the mighty" in another exciting encounter with the wild animals of the forest.

The big show concludes with a vaudeville number by Fred Wells and Art Easson in a zylophone and sax duet, playing the popular Al Jolson song hit, "Sonny Boy."

ARRIVES IN PORT

C.N.R. steamer Prince John, Capt. Neil McLean, arrived in port at 1 o'clock this morning from Vancouver via the Queen Charlotte Islands and will be here until 10 o'clock tomorrow night when she will sail on her return south over the same route. The Prince John brought a light passenger list here and her cargo includes some 300 tons of Vancouver Island coal for the city's power plant at the dry dock.
