

Speed Records Datona Beach to Have Monument

DAYTONA BEACH, Fla., Oct. 23.—Erection of a monument to super-speed is being planned here, where most of the major automobile straightaway trials have been staged in recent years. Plans call for its erection on one of the small islands in the meandering Halifax River, which separates the smooth, wave-lapped stretch of natural ocean speedway from the mainland.

On the monument are to be inscribed the names and achievements of the makers of all officially recognized world speed records which date back to 1898, when Chasseloup-Laubat, the Frenchman, astounded the world with a speed of 39 miles an hour. Since that time the automobile speed record has been broken 31 times by 25 drivers, a list including such familiar names as Barney Oldfield, Ralph DePalma, Tommy Milton and Henry Ford, who in 1903 set a record of 91.37 miles an hour in his famous old "999."

The Daytona Beach speedway has been the scene of every record breaking achievement since Sir Henry Seagrave of England started the world in 1927 by attaining for the first time, an automobile speed of 206 miles an hour. Since then, the world's straightaway speed record has been boosted to the present mark of 231.362 miles an hour, which Sir Henry set here last spring after his old mark of 203.79 had twice been broken, once by a fellow countryman, Capt. Malcolm Campbell, and once by an American, the late Ray Keech of Philadelphia.

Having acceded to a request from the Edmonton Commercial Grads, world's champion girls' basketball team, to stage an exhibition run at their gymnasium on the occasion of the opening of the basketball season at Edmonton this Saturday, Percy Williams of Vancouver, Olympic sprint champion, recently resumed training for the first time since he strained a ligament in his race with Eddie Tolan at Hastings Park in August. He is not thinking of any indoor campaign this winter such as his eastern invasion last year. He will leave Vancouver for Edmonton tomorrow.

Walter Hagen, British open and American professional golf champion, after playing an exhibition match at Salt Lake City a few days ago, announced that he would soon retire from active golf and devote his time to business. Hagen will shortly complete a barnstorming tour. While he will continue to play in choice tournaments, he states that he will discontinue his annual playing regularly.

Around The World With Sport Fans (By The Tramp)

When members of the Brockton, Mass., Lions Club found their annual theatrical week, by which they have been wont to raise money for their milk fund, was threatening to be a financial failure, they determined to give the people what they wanted. An amateur boxing show was arranged, which yielded a profit for the fund of $2,500.

There will be no professional hockey in Rochester this coming season, and perhaps the Flower City will hesitate to seek a franchise in the future. International League heads, assembled at Niagara Falls, ruled that open-air hockey is not desirable, this having been the proposal made by the Rochester owners, who had purchased a franchise from Stratford. This deal was rescinded, and the franchise was taken up by the league, the idea being that the Stratford club will be reorganized. Rochester leaders gave assurance that, if admitted to the league, no snow or rain would fall in the Flower City baseball stadium on those days on which games were scheduled, but in rebuttal those who first learned their hockey on the frozen ponds, rivers and lakes of this country rose up as one to offer strong protests. Weather reports were then produced to prove that the "Snowman" does not know where Rochester is located, but even this argument failed to carry weight.

Giving the most sensational wrestling display ever seen in Toronto, Gus Sonnenberg, champion of the world, defeated Dan Koloff, the Bulgarian giant in two straight falls at the Toronto Arena recently. It was a bout in which no mercy was shown. The titleholder was there to defend his laurels and made good in all departments, but it was when he used the flying tackle that the seven thousand four hundred fans in attendance went wild with excitement. Koloff evaded this manoeuvre once and Sonnenberg went out of the ring. But after that he couldn't get away and he was crashed almost into insensibility as Sonnenberg secured the first fall after 39 minutes and 33 seconds of torrid grappling. The second fall came quickly, the time being six minutes and 12 seconds. It must not be imagined that the champion had things all his own way. He didn't and he had to give his best to take the verdict. The powerful Koloff hurled him out of the ring seven times and also made four trips in that direction himself. Sonnenberg injured his leg when he landed heavily on his shoulder and swung around off balance. But he is a real champion and he went back into action to show amazing strength and resourcefulness.

British Boys on Canadian Farms

Dr. Black Made Vice-President of Boys' and Girls' Clubs of Great Britain
WINNIPEG, Oct. 18.—For the first time in its history, the National Association of Boys' and Girls' Clubs of Great Britain has elected a Canadian to the position of vice-president. Word has been received at the Canadian National Railway headquarters, Montreal, that Dr. W. J. Black, director of colonization and agriculture for the National system, has been elected to this office. The association has a membership of 3,000,000 boys and girls. In both the rural and urban communities of Great Britain.
Among other aims, the association has for some time been engaged in the movement to place British boys on Canadian farms. The association feels that Canada offers unlimited opportunities to those who are willing to work and are ambitious to better themselves. With this object in view, a select group of boys will be placed on farms in the Dominion next year.
Dr. Black's election to the position of vice-president of this organization brings to mind the interesting fact that some 16 years ago he was the originator of the boys' and girls' farm club movement in this country. At that time he was president of the Manitoba Agricultural College, and organized the first boys' and girls' club at Roland, Man. Out of this small beginning grew the present day clubs of the Dominion and of Great Britain, and it is fitting that the man who began the small club in Roland, Man., 16 years ago, should be elected to the vice-presidency of the huge national organization which, from that small beginning has grown. Dr. Black was advised that the association will hold its annual conference in Britain next July, when plans will be discussed for the placing of a large number of British boys on Canadian farms.

Russian Girl at Alberta University

Lady is Taking Course in Electrical Engineering and is Charming and Vivacious
EDMONTON, Oct. 23.—The university this year has the honor of the presence of a student unique in the faculty in which she has registered. It is Miss Esther Rabkin, who has registered in electrical engineering.
She is a little dark, curly-haired Russian girl, with sparkling brown eyes, and a most charming and vivacious manner. "I have always wanted to take up electrical engineering," she says, in her excellent English, with the piquant Russian accent. "Ever since I was in high school in Russia. A number of my friends have gone into it there and have been doing very well."
Miss Rabkin came out to Canada four years ago. Her home was not far from Moscow. When her father died, she being the eldest of the family, and her mother, decided to come out to far-away Canada, to relatives they had in Calgary. Already Esther had completed her schooling in Russia.
"In Russia, we only go to school nine years. We do not have high schools and public schools as you do, but both are in one. I studied French and German, and in French I was doing very well. But I am afraid I have forgotten it. I was most interested in the lab work we did in physics, and in the electrical experiments we performed," she explained.
"What are you going to do when survey school starts in the spring?" she was asked.
"Oh, I shall put on men's breeches and high top boots, and then I shall hike with the other students when they go out to do their field work. I am not afraid of it. I can do it as well as men."
"How are you managing to take such an expensive course?" she was asked.
"Works Her Way"
"I work during the holidays. This summer I was made the manager of a grocery store in Calgary. I am going to find something to do on Saturdays to give me extra money, while I attend school."
The money question does not worry her. A perfectly independent student, who puts herself through college, she has every chance to succeed.
"What if you get married?"—Miss Rabkin laughed cheerfully. "Well if I do, then I will go on with my work just the same. A husband does not spoil a girl's chances in this work."
Miss Rabkin is only the second woman student to have registered in engineering at the university. She does not seem to think her choice at all strange, as apparently it is quite a popular career with girls in Russia.

SPELLING OF ENGLISH

Curious Pronunciation of Names Shown in Verse
LONDON, Oct. 23.—Who would recognize an early form of Dublin under such a gathering of consonants and vowels as "Diuehling," and yet is this far removed from our English habit of pronouncing certain surnames in a manner utterly at variance with their spelling? Why spell it Majnwaring if you are going to call it Mannerling? asks the bewildered foreigner. As a matter of plain fact not only can no intelligent answer be supplied to this question, but there are at least a thousand other words and names in the language whose pronunciation can be similarly challenged. At the moment the British Broadcasting Company is being assailed for permitting its announcers to indulge in what are alleged to be eccentricities of pronunciation, and even such little ordinary words as "law" and "again" are being vehemently called into question. We are being brought to such a chaotic pass that the other night an announcer, after pronouncing "justifiable" after the manner of every reasonable man, made a twenty-second pause and said: "I beg your pardon, 'justifiable.' Here are some lines which pleasantly emphasize the current pronunciation of some English family names: Great Britain absolutely teems With men and women surnamed Wemyss, And everywhere the tyro strolls There lurks an unsuspected Knollys. He's certain to be greeted glumly Who gives four syllables to Cholmondeley. Or by his ignorance disarms The good intentions of a Glamis. Who'd blame a self-respecting Tyrwhitt. Miscalled, for chiding in a spirit Of gentle protest? And a Ruthven May similarly be forgiven. 'Twere justice that my tongue should blister. If, having met a Mr. Bicester, I hailed him wrongly; it would grieve a Descendant of the clan of Belvoir To be erroneously addressed. It cannot be too strongly stressed; A shock awaits the fool who plans to waver. 'Good morning Claverhouse'—"
