School Bylaw Is Endorsed.

Over sixty per cent of the ratepayers of Prince Rupert who voted on the bylaws yesterday endorsed the project of raising $150,000 for the erection of a new permanent school building on Acropolis Hill. There was some strong opposition to it and most of those who opposed did so, doubtless, from conscientious motives. They feared that we were spending too much money in one direction.

Those who supported believed with The News that the cause of the children is paramount. They saw no serious obstacle in the young folks having to climb the hill once or twice each day, even in bad weather.

We congratulate the people of Prince Rupert on having decided for a policy of permanency and progress. When the school is built we shall have at least one building that should stand the ravages of time. It will show that the people of the city, those who pay the bills, have faith in the future of the place and in the children who are to live here.

There was the best of feeling among those who were supporting or opposing the bylaw. That is the only way to conduct the business of the city or country. We cannot agree, of course, but we can agree to differ. There will be other questions of public import come up for decision from time to time and if we can settle them amicably and without bitterness we shall be in a position to get results. We are all shareholders in a big concern, the community. Each one thinks the business should be conducted in a certain manner. Why fight over it? Amicable strife is invigorating, but bitterness spells death.

Churches Suffer From Money Depreciation.

The dollar has lost a good deal of its purchasing power, yet some people are getting no more income today than they were years ago. This is particularly noticeable in the churches. As men earn more they spend more, but the expenditures are increased only in certain directions.

The man who goes to church and puts twenty-five cents in the collection plate has in many cases done so for many years. The little silver piece is not worth as much today as it was a few years ago, so the church really gets less. As a result an effort is to be made to even things up. Churches and other institutions kept up by voluntary subscriptions are the losers by the falling in value of money.

If the churches are of value to the community, and we believe they are, they should be properly supported. There should be no sweatshop methods in the church any more than in the factory. Those who are responsible for the churches should be ashamed to starve them. Properly supported they may become centres of healthy activity, making for the betterment of the community.

Metric System of Weights and Measures.

Two societies are campaigning for the use of the metric system on this continent. They are the World Trade Club of San Francisco and the Metric Association of New York. They have a good cause as it must be to the advantage of any community to cast aside a poor system and introduce a better in its place.

The metric system is already in use in a good many countries and some of which are not as far advanced in a good many respects as this country. The late Andrew Carnegie was among the supporters of the change and so also are W. C. Redfield, U. S. Secretary of Commerce; the Assistant Secretary of War, W. G. McAdoo, war time Secretary of the Treasury, and a number of others.

The metric system resembles our money system in that it is counted in tens instead of by twelves, threes, and other irregular numbers.
