Gardening....

A HEALTHY GARDEN — Old-timers sometimes scoff at all these modern precautions against attacks of pests or diseases, whether the potential victims are human beings or gardens. In early days, it is true, so far as gardens were concerned, there were not nearly as many bugs lurking around as if the case today. These things increased as the country opened up, and if they didn't originate in Canada they soon hitch-hiked here by boat, train and lately even by plane. Today we are literally surrounded by all sorts of things that will quickly ravage the garden unless we are on the alert.

But it is not difficult to have fine flowers and crisp vegetables even with all their enemies. The first care should be to keep the garden in healthy condition. A well-cultivated, well-fertilized plant is the first and main defense. If plants are left untended and surrounded with weeds, if the soil is poor and growth spindly and weak we have an ideal spot for pests to flourish.

THERE ARE CURES—Of course specific bugs and diseases will require specific counter measures. Fortunately modern science has kept well abreast of the new troubles. Careful gardeners will always be on the watch for any attack, will examine any damage like wilted or partially destroyed or eaten leaves, will regard with suspicion any sudden check. Careful gardeners will also supply themselves with some sort of a duster or sprayer and the proper materials to go with them. There is all sorts of equipment available, and for the small garden it is not necessary to spend more than a dollar or two.

As a general rule, insects that eat the foliage are attacked with a poison such as DDT, arsenate of lead, etc., while those that suck out the juices like aphids and other plant lice are controlled with preparations incorporating nicotine or tobacco solutions, lime, sulphur or special soap. Fairly ground sulphur dust is an excellent preventative for diseases like rust.

WHEN IT GETS HOT—A hot sun is not appreciated by plants or a tender skin, and the results in both cases may be painful. The wise gardener will change his methods a bit when the days turn hot. With the lawn he will cut less frequently, certainly no oftener than once a week, and he will usually let the clippings lie where they fall to form a bit of protecting mulch. He will also set his mower a little higher so that the grass is not cut so short.

In the flower and vegetable garden, even if no weeds have been allowed to grow, he will continue a light cultivation once a week or every ten days, to create what is known as a dust mulch which will prevent evaporation from the soil.

It will not be too late to continue sowing quite a few quick-growing vegetables like lettuce, beets, carrots and beans. In fact the person who gets the most out of his vegetable garden is the one who makes several sowings a week apart right up to early July. This creates a succession of fresh vegetables.

Before going on holidays it is an excellent plan to go over flower and vegetable gardens

Alberta Indians Lose Old Friend

WATERTON, Alta. (C) — Blood Indians of southern Alberta have said a sad goodbye to a staunch friend.

He is Ven. Samuel H. Middleton, Archdeacon of Lethbridge, who has worked with the Bloods since 1909.

Archdeacon Middleton retired because of failing eyesight from his position as rector of St. Paul's Anglican Church for the Indians at Cardston, of St. Thomas' Church at Cardston and of All Saints' Church in the town of Waterton.

Although retiring as Archdeacon of Lethbridge, he will retain the title of Archdeacon by special permission of Rt. Rev. Richard Ragg, Bishop of Calgary.

Fittingly enough, his last sermon was preached on the grass beside a running stream, a few miles from the reservation where he began his missionary work 41 years ago. As the snow-haired priest ended his last service, Chief Joe Bull Shields told a reporter, "It's awfully hard to see him go."

lightly with a cultivator then, if possible, mulch lightly with grass clippings or similar material to conserve the moisture. If necessary and possible one should water thoroughly the night before this final pre-holiday cultivation.

STOCKHOLM (C) — Press clippings of the death of King Gustav V and ascension to throne of his eldest son have been gathered in 16 bound volumes by a Stockholm advertising firm and presented to King Gustav VI.

UNUSUAL SANDWICHES

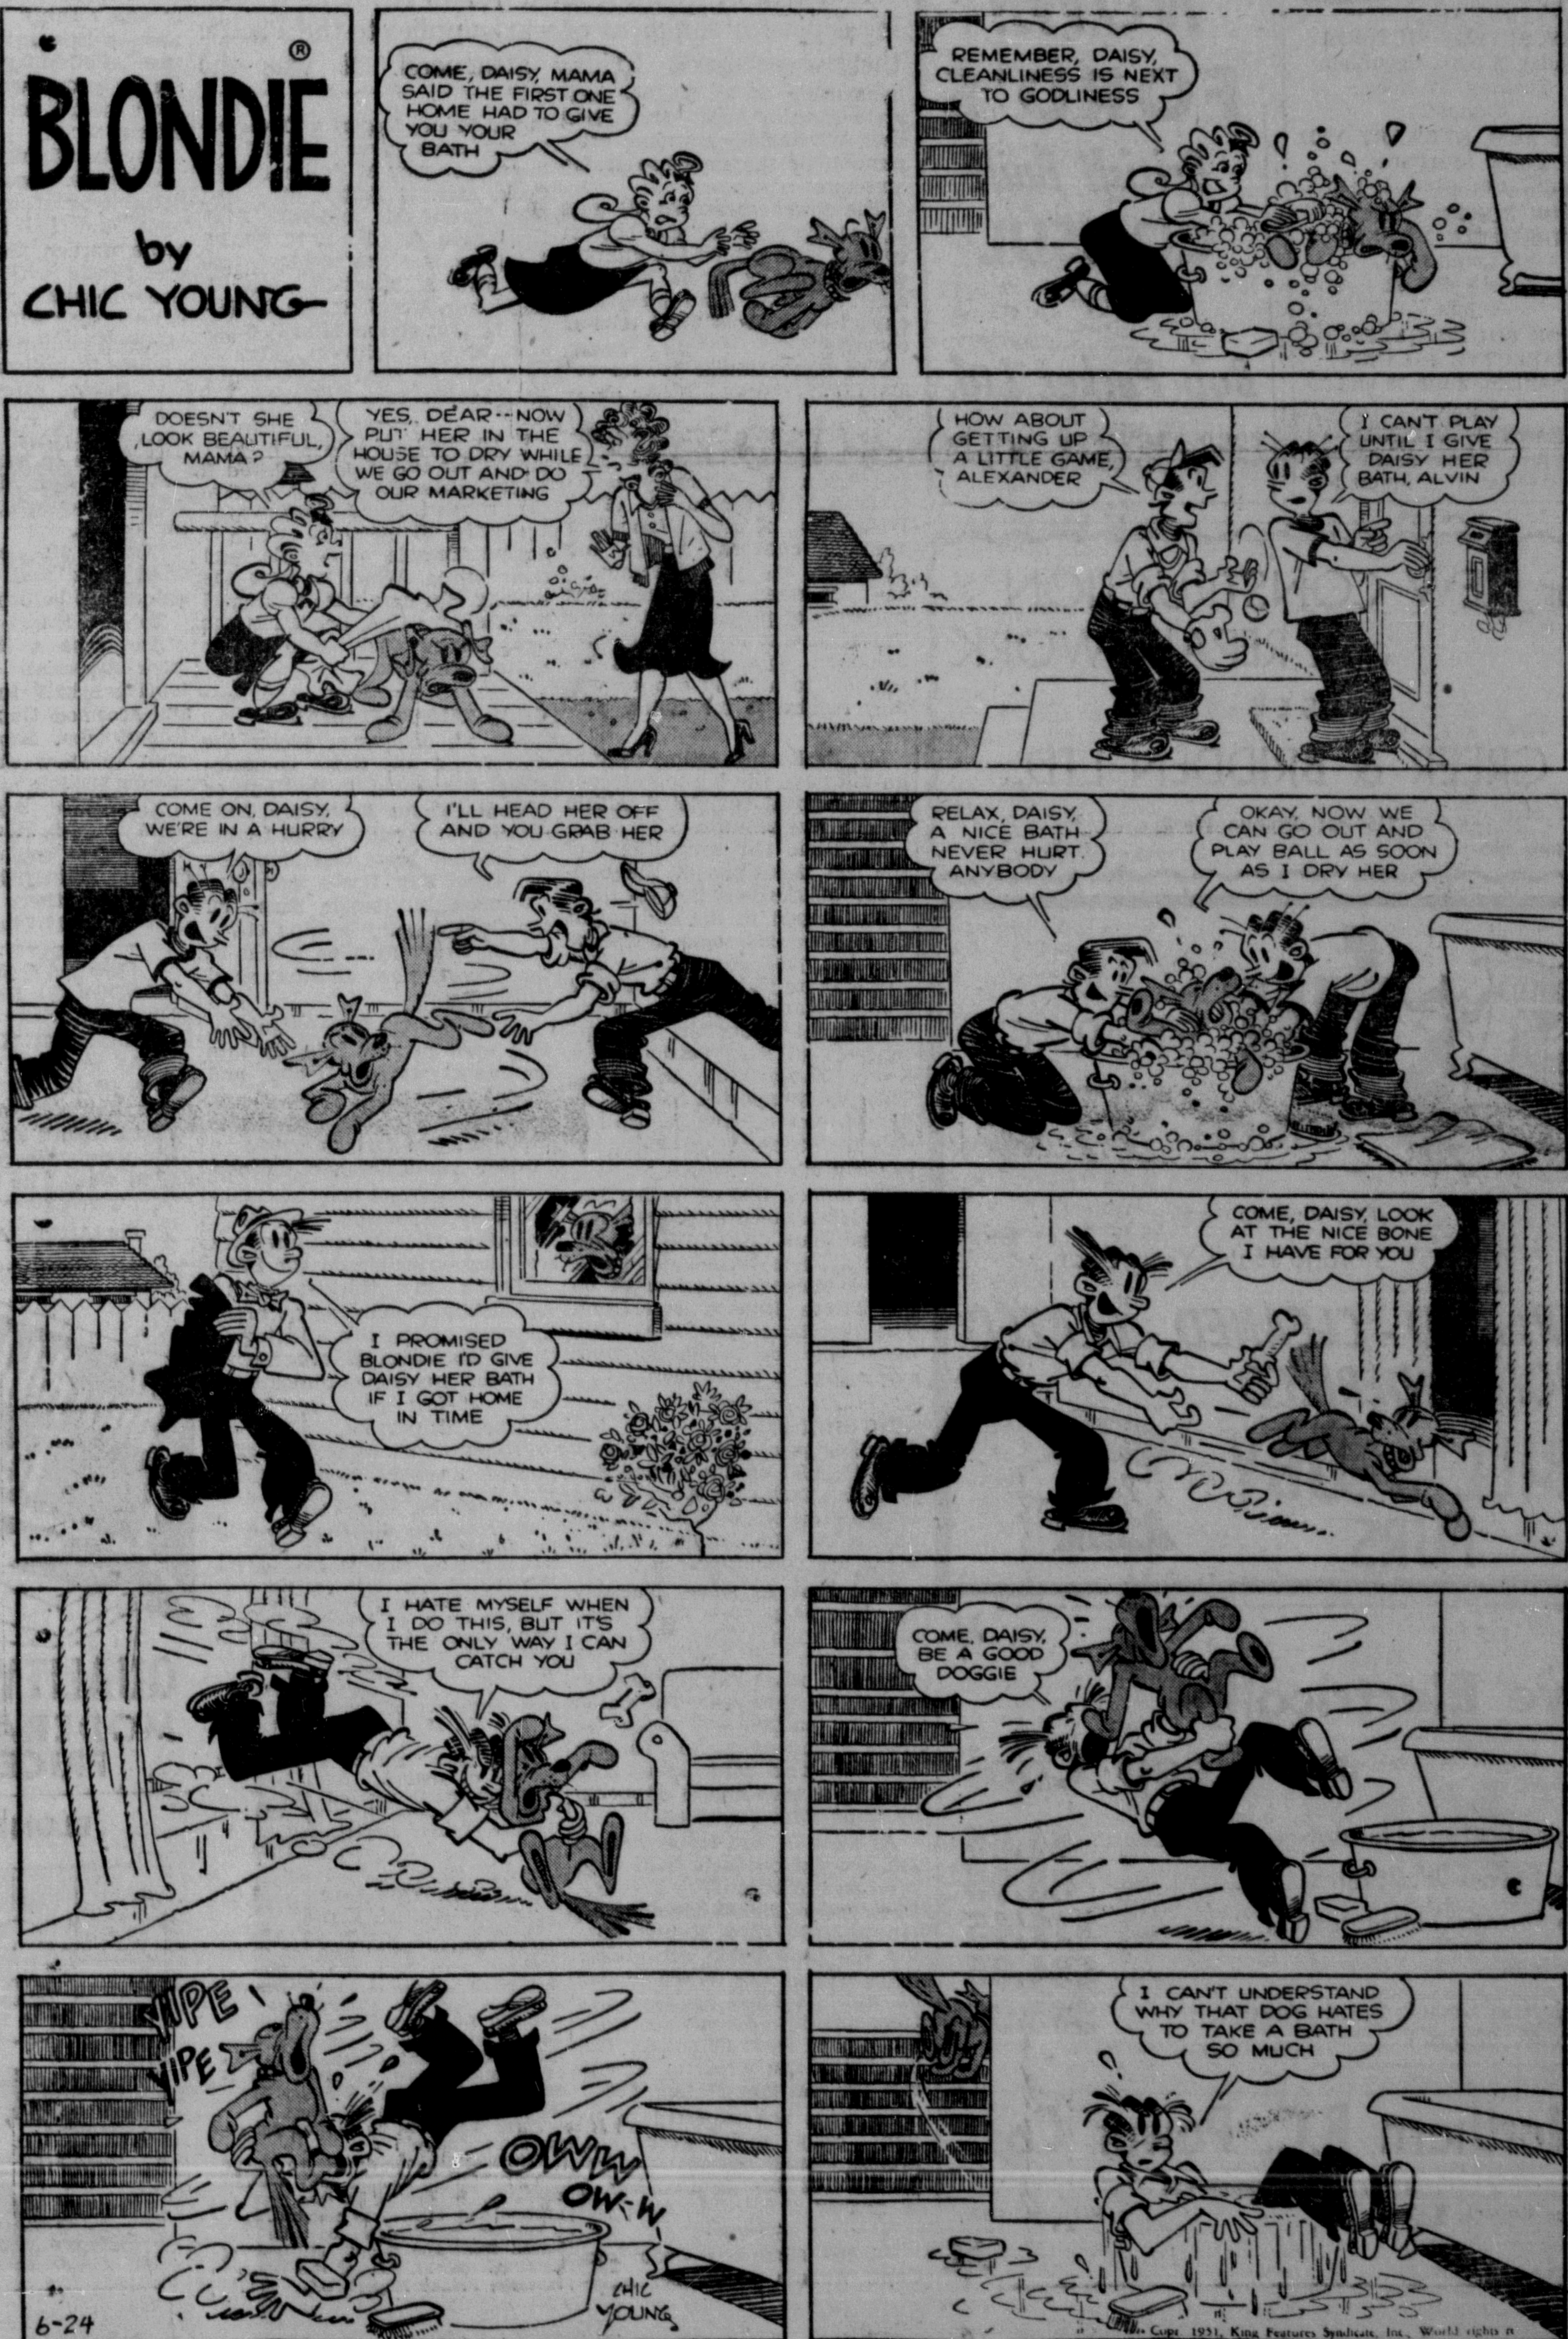

Open-face sandwiches with banana slices and bacon on a flavoured base of toast, smooth mayonnaise and sharp cheese spread, make a combination that is very unusual. The flavor is delightful. And these sandwiches are quick and easy to make. Just two quick spreads—mayonnaise and then cheese. Then banana slices go on, with bacon for topping. Sandwiches then go under the broiler for a mere second or two.

Make them for the sheer joy of making them, and the pleasure and enjoyment your family is sure to have in eating them.

4 slices bread, crusts trimmed
Mayonnaise
1 4-oz. glass sharp cheese spread
Banana slices
4 slices partially broiled bacon
Watercress

India and Pakistan have the most widely varied climate in the world with normal annual rainfall 426 inches in Assam, only 3 in Sind.

GUELPH, Ont. (C) — All through the night Al Walsh heard the mournful howling of a dog in distress. He found a Boston Bull terrier caught in the roots of a twisted tree, where the dog evidently had become entangled while chasing a rabbit.
